BULLETIN

Naco, Sonora.—(AP)—In the face of withering gun fire rebel troops under General Fautz Topete attacking the federal garrison here had gained the protection of a cemetery east of town at noon Saturday and had driven the federal troops from the front line trenches.

Naco, Ariz.—(AP)—American and Mexican soldiers clashed in battle here Saturday, climaxing a night of violence along the international border during which the Southern Pacific railroad line to the east was found strewn with bombs.

The clash between the Mexicans and Americans occurred at a Southern Pacific railroad tunnel eight miles east of here. Border patrolmen of Troop E, Tenth United States Cavalry, reported that they were fired upon by the Mexicans as they approached a cache of bombs.

Mexican soldiers, the Americans said, moved up from their side of the line and opened fire. One American private, whose name was not given, was shot through the chest.
The Americans said they opened up their guns then and the Mexicans fled.

BOMBS IN SACKS
American soldiers said there were 75 bombs, contained in 15 sacks, along railroad tracks. Whether these were to be used to blow up an American train believed to be bringing Mexican federal soldiers to reinforce the Naco loyal garrison, or whether the explosives had been cached there to be smuggled across the border to the rebels was not determined by the American officers.

Developments came fast, beginning with a terrific explosion in Naco, Sonora, at 3 o'clock in the morning. Immediately preceding this, both Naco towns were plunged into total darkness. Main electric lines were found to have been cut on the American side, four blocks from the international line.

The explosion rocked the two towns, shaking residents out of their beds and breaking windows. Citizens believed it heralded the long expected major attack on the federal garrison by rebel troops immediately to the south. Big searchlights which had been flashing out from the garrison were useless. It looked as if a rebel raid was coming. The international line was closed and newspapers were refused permission to cross.

Later it was said a locomotive just outside the federal trenches had been blown up. Whether this was the work of rebels or the premature explosion of a defense mine or from some other cause remained undetermined. The rebels are said to have planted 12 mines around the garrison.

RUSH TROOPS TO SCENE
The United States cavalry troop, part of the command of Major Walter Habeler here, rushed to the tunnel eight miles east of Naco on reports that an explosion had rocked buildings in Douglas, 23 miles east of Naco, and that another blast had occurred at the tunnel.

Meanwhile Topete's troops hurled themselves at the loyal Naco garrison. Shortly after daybreak two rebel airplanes roared over the Mexican town, dropping six bombs and heralding a general advance.

Rebel cavalrymen bore down on Naco from the south encountering fire from a field piece in the garrison and a fusillade of rifle bullets from the federal outposts. Firing was not at the outset. Two improved tanks lumbered ahead of the advancing cavalry.

OFFICIALS AROUSED
Washington.—(AP)—War and state department officials were incensed Saturday over reports of the shooting of an American cavalryman, and the firing on American troops by Mexicans from across the international line of the rebel forces which caused the shooting.

Energetic measures to curb the accused lives and property of Americans on the United States side of the line are expected to be promptly taken by the military authorities in charge of the situation in Arizona.

Five Killed, Many Hurt In Iowa Fire

Des Moines Hotel Burns—Scores Are Taken to Hospitals for Treatment

Des Moines, Iowa.—(AP)—At least five persons are dead and scores are suffering from injuries, burns and cuts received in a fire which broke out at the Kirkwood hotel, Fourth and Walnut streets here shortly after 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

Fire Chief Burnett after inspecting the wreckage expressed the belief that several additional bodies might be found. He said a group of men and women had been reported holding a party in one of the rooms, and had not been found since. Firemen were almost unanimous in believing that more victims were buried in the debris.

The known dead:
Mrs. Ted Watson, Red Jarrup, W.
P. Ralder, John P. Scott and one unidentified man.

The injured taken to hospitals
here include: C. J. Cooper, Cora Bracker, Louis Strait, 30, fireman;
Ethel Beakler, 40, Humston, Iowa;

C. N. Catlin, 45; Pearl Wessels, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rogers, 2224 W. Division-st., Chicago; Ted Platt, H. E.
Watson. Many others injured and burned were given first aid treatment. Between 125 and 150 persons were in the building when the fire broke out.

Two policemen, attracted by the fire, noticed the flames about the same time and turned in alarms. All fire companies responded to the call, and all ambulances in the city were called to take the injured to hospitals.

Four men, jumped from the fifth (top) floor to the top of the court which served as the roof of the first floor. Three of them are believed to be dead.

Many of the guests had to flee in their night clothes.

CREDIT PROBE BY CONGRESS IS PROBABLE

No Official Interferences Expected if Present Situation Eases

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1929 by Post Pub. Co.

Washington.—Will there be a congressional investigation of the credit situation. This question is being asked on every side now because of the spectacular developments of the last fortnight.

The federal reserve board's policy has become a matter of such wide controversy that members of congress are beginning to hear from their various states about it. Two different opinions are being expressed, one of resentment that there is any interference at all with what is constituted to be the normal supply and demand of credit and the other a feeling of uneasiness that tighter credit brought about by the speculative element might hinder business generally.

Every time that there is a chance of touching the delicate business fabric, there is a repercussion in Washington. When the agricultural sections of the country, for example, felt the deflation policies of the federal reserve board in the spring of 1921, the senators and representatives from the western states agitated the question constantly in congress and there were demands for investigations and resolutions seeking to curb the power of the board.

GOOD PRESENT OUTLOOK
The situation is somewhat different today because general business is considered to be favorable and the whole problem is much more one of anticipation of what might happen rather than what has happened. There is also a greater feeling of accord between the elements that usually attack the federal reserve

THREE ARE FINED FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

Backing out of a parking place and into a police officer's motorcycle cost J. M. McGuire, Appleton, $10 and costs in municipal court Saturday morning. The charge against him was reckless driving.

Ed Korman, 1923 Sunnyside-ave, Chicago, paid a fine Saturday morning of $5 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of driving with four persons in the front seat of his car. Officer Fred Arndt made the arrest.

Charles Murray, 414 E. Commercial-st., Appleton, was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Gus Hor-seshorn on a charge of driving 30 miles and hour W. College-ave. He had not appeared in court Saturday noon.

FIRST TAX CUT WILL BE ON EARNED INCOMES

Washington.—(AP)—The many men and women who earn their own incomes and keep an annual agreement with the collector of internal revenue may draw some satisfaction from assurances that the administration hopes to lighten their tax burden.

When the time is propitious for a reduction in federal income levies, they stand first on President Hoo-ver's list of those to be benefited and the chief executive's views have the expressed support of Secretary Mellon and numerous leaders in the house and senate.

But in the president's opinion, and again his ideas coincide with those of the treasury head, it will be at least six months before the subject can be discussed with a view to positive action. After that there will still be plenty of time before the regular session of congress in December.

THREE ARE KILLED BY BIG STORM IN CANADA

Toronto.—(AP)—Three lives were lost, and four Canadian Pacific railway trains were stranded east of Toronto in a terrific electrical storm, accompanied by heavy rain that swept central Ontario Friday night. Sections of the city of Galt were inundated as the Grand river overflowed.

According to an official C. P. R. statement, Engineer J. Kennedy met his death as a mudslide two miles east of Bowmanville early Saturday morning derailed six freight cars of his train.
A man and a girl were killed when an automobile plunged from a Kingston highway into Harmony creek.

Hoovers Leave Capital For Brief Fishing Trip

Madison, Va.—(AP)—After a pleasant ride of nearly three hours, President Hoover arrived Saturday in this Virginia town and turned at once into the adjoining hills for his first fishing since he became chief executive.

The president was accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, Secretary Wilbur, Lawrence Richey, his secretary, Charles Y. Ritten of New York, Captain Wilson,
Brown, naval aide and Major E.
C. Long, of the marine corps.

After a short stop here the party proceeded to the village of Criglersville, where the heavy White House limousines were abandoned for smaller cars for the rougher going along the woodland trails. A few miles further on saddle horses awaited the party's coming for the remainder of the trip.

PLAINTIFF LOSES IN DAMAGE SUIT

Jury Decides Carl Steidl Was Guilty of Negligence in Accident

Mrs. Rose Steidl, Appleton, lost her suit for $10,000 damages against William and Raymond Wichman, Appleton, when a jury in circuit court returned a special verdict finding that Carl Steidl, over whose death the suit was started, was guilty of negligence and did not exercise ordinary care in driving his car when it collided with one driven by young Wichman. The accident occurred last November, at the junction of highway 41 and county trunk E at the east city limits.

The jury awarded William Wichman owner of the car Raymond Wichman was driving, $25 on his counterclaim of $2,500. The jury was out about seven hours, returning its verdict late Friday afternoon.
Mrs. Steidl charged that Raymond Wichman had driven his car in a negligent manner and was the cause of accident. The jury was not asked to decide whether young Wichman had been guilty of negligence.

SOUTHERN CROSS FLIERS ARE BELIEVED LOCATED

Perth, N. S. W.—(AP)—Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions of the Southern Cross were believed Saturday to be down southwest of Thursday bluff, western Australia. A government launch with a government searching party was sent for them. The information was conveyed in a telegram Saturday morning to Philip Collier, premier of western Australia, from Colonel Mansbridge, resident magistrate at Broome, far west Australian coast.

STILL SEEKING BIDS ON POSTOFFICE SITES

Postal authorities again have announced that bids for furnishing a site for a new federal building in Appleton will be opened in Washington at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, April 17. All proposals to furnish sites must be in Washington before that date.

The government has not set a definite figure for the purchase of a site and it is the purpose of the postal department to acquire property as cheaply as it can.

P. F. Wetzel, acting postmaster, has announced that if there are property holders in Appleton who wish to submit proposals to the government for their property they can obtain bidding blanks at the postoffice here.

Last Minute Bulletins

Milwaukee.—(AP)—State Senator
Ben Gettelman, Milwaukee, announced here he will introduce a resolution in the legislature requesting that congress call a constitutional convention for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. He said that if Wisconsin joins the 22 states that have already petitioned congress for a constitutional convention, the vote of nine more states will be needed to bring about the first convention of this kind in the history of the nation.

Ironwood, Mich.—(AP)—Buildings on two farms at Sandrock, south of here, were destroyed by Friday night's storm and the town of Mercer was thrown into darkness when power lines went down. John Popko and his family escaped injury when the storm wrecked their home and a laborer sleeping in the barn was badly frightened when the structure

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Six more persons, ill from eating tainted custard pies, were rushed to Emergency hospital Saturday for treatment. This brings the total of those treated for this cause in the last few days in Milwaukee and Cudahy to 19, while about a dozen other patients are under physician's care at their homes.
Dr. John P. Koehler, city health commissioner, is awaiting a report from R. W. Cunliffe, city chemist, who is analyzing some of the pies.

Ellisport.—(AP)—L. M. Wright, Madison, Wisconsin, state veterinarian, has ordered Walworth county quarantine for rabies. Investigation disclosed that a dog, bearing a Milwaukee license tag, was rampant here

GOV. LONG TO STAND TRIAL IN LOUISIANA

House Impeaches Him on One Count and Considers Others on List

Baton Rouge.—(AP)—The house of representatives of the Louisiana legislature Saturday morning voted to send Huey P. Long, governor, to trial before the state senate. The vote was 58 to 40.

The vote was taken in a tense atmosphere with members shouting and disputing the recording of the voting machines. Some of the members changed their votes and the clerk refused to announce the vote until he had polled the house.

The impeachment was voted on a resolution by George K. Perrault, St. Landry, charging the governor with attempting to intimidate Charles P. Manship, publisher of the State Times and Morning Advocate of Baton Rouge, by threatening to publish the infirmities of his brother, Douglas Manship, an inmate in a state insane asylum.

Representative Hammet moved the appointment of managers from the house to conduct the impeachment trial before the senate.

SOLDS NEAR BLOWS

After the vote several members jumped in between Representative McClannahan of Caldwell and Representative Woods of New Orleans, who were engaged in a heated conversation.

"Call the sergeant-at-arms," members shouted.

"I am tired of being insulted by that rat," yelled Mr. McClannahan.
"I want to change my seat. I don't want to sit beside him."

Finally the Caldwell representative took his seat and a semblance of order was restored.

The motion for appointment of the managers was adopted by an almost unanimous vote.

The house after a heated discussion over a recess finally agreed to quit until 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The charge voted on was one of 19 made against Long and the house planned to resume consideration of the others Saturday afternoon.

SANTA FE ROAD COACH IS WRECKED BY BLAST

Temple, Texas.—(AP)—A passenger coach of a southbound Santa Fe train was wrecked about 15 miles north of here early Saturday by a mysterious explosion. None of the 15 passengers in the car was seriously injured.

Officers, after questioning passengers, advanced the theory the explosion was caused by a bomb but were at a loss to explain the presence of explosives on the train.

All windows and one end of the coach were blown out. Other coaches were not damaged.

COUPLES WHO TRADED MATES TO FACE COURT

Minot, N. D.—(AP)—Two Renville couple, who recently traded mates, are to be arrested.

Decision to file criminal charges against Mr. and Mrs. Willis Knight and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bikansrud, living 28 miles northwest of Minot, was reached at a conference between Renville and Wardco authorities here late Friday. The charges will be based on the accusation that the couples were not legally wedded, because they were married before the time limit designated in their divorce decrees had expired.

The two women obtained divorces in Minot last January on the following day all four went to Canada, where they were re-married.

4-TIME LIQUOR LAW VIOLATOR HANGS SELF IN MICHIGAN

Muskegon, Mich.—(AP)—Al-Zack, 35, first fourth-time liquor law violator to escape life imprisonment under Michigan's recently amended habitual criminal act, early Saturday hanged himself in his cell at the county jail here.

ley, former Muskegon-prosecutor, refused to bring to trial last fall as an habitual criminal under the original law, Friday was sentenced under the amended law to serve from 10 to 15 years in state prison at Jackson.

HOLD FIVE YOUTHS FOR DELINQUENCY

Sixth Member of Gang Is Charged With Burglary in Night Time

Six Appleton boys who started a career as gangsters and pilfered ten Appleton stores and garages during the last few weeks will have their trials next week, one in municipal court on a charge of burglary, the other five in juvenile court on the charge of being delinquents. The boys had their preliminary hearing Friday afternoon while the trial on the burglary charge will be heard Tuesday morning and the delinquency charges Monday afternoon. Bond was furnished by relatives of the youth being held on the burglary charge.

The burglary charge is that the oldest of the group entered the shoe repair shop of Joseph Muller 201 S.
Cherry-st. in the night time.

Untangling of the gang started Thursday night when Officer Earl Thomas found three of the boys ran-sacking the office of the city sealer of weights and measures at the stock pile grounds. Lost of the youngsters in most cases was cash and miscelaneous small articles.

POLICE STILL SEEK FRAT HOUSE ROBBER

Police still are working on clues pointing toward the person who walked out of Pal Chi Omega, fraternity house of Lawrence college, 218 S. Oak-st., early Friday morning with about $250 in jewelry and cash.
The only clues found so far is the story of one of the members of the group that he met a man leaving the house and carrying a suit case early on the morning of the robbery.

Possibilities of apprehending the thief are small, according to police who have issued a warning to fraternity houses to keep their doors locked nights. Frat houses all over the city are wide open every night and no attention paid to who goes in or comes out, according to police.

APPLETON POLICE LOOK FOR BAY CAR THIEF

Two States—Property

3 BADGERS ARE MISSING

Barron, Rice Lake and Reeves Regions Heaviest Hit by Tornado

Superior.—(AP)—Reports from storm-swept northwest Wisconsin and Minnesota Saturday indicated that the death toll from Friday night's tornado may reach or pass a score.

According to advices received here over slender wire communications at least 16 are known to be dead in the two states, 12 of them in Wisconsin, with the possibility that deaths among the 200 or more injured may bring the final toll to more than twenty.

Minneapolis.—(AP)—A mounting casualty list which stood at 13 dead, 3 missing and more than 100 injured, besides property damage estimated at millions of dollars, bore testimony Saturday to the fury of spring storms which swirled over Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa late Friday.

With communication into some sections severed and a number of the injured in critical condition it was feared that death toll would increase as belated reports came from the affected areas.

The death toll includes eight in northwestern Wisconsin, four in Minnesota and one in Iowa.

A section of Minnesota extending approximately 60 miles north from the Twin Cities and an area approximately 75 square miles in Wisconsin felt the full force of the storm before it exhausted its force. In Chicago, Minnesota, alone, property damage was estimated at $500,000.

Superior.—(AP)—A spring tornado, sweeping down into northwest Wisconsin, had left behind it Saturday at least eight known dead, three missing and scores of injured.

Skipping across from Minnesota, the three were killed through the timber country between Superior and Chippewa Falls. The tornado struck near the dairying community of barron, then jumped to Rice Lake, Reeves and Clayton, Wis. Blowing west, it expended its force over the Wisconsin river valley where accompanying lightning brought death to one man and did property damage.

The known dead are:
A. G. Anderson, farmer near Glenwood City, Wis.

Douglas, Lawrence and Dorothy Pittman, children of Mr. and Mrs.
Richard Pittman, farmer near Reeves, Wis.

Miss Martha Raabe, 25, near Rice
Lake, Wis.

Mrs. Lewis Reed, 59, near Rice
Lake, Wis.

John T. Salmon, farmer near Clayton, Wis.

Mrs. John Paulson, 52, injured fatally when the house on the Paulson farm near Barron, Wis., was blown down.

Trautman and Marie Buhrow of the Rice Lake district. It was feared they were dead.

tal at Barron, Mrs. Lewis Ravenn, 65, may die. At Rice Lake 29 were seriously injured they were placed in the hospital. Other small towns cared for injured.

County Board Meets In Special Session On Monday

WILL ELECT CHAIRMAN TO SUCCEED MACK

Supervisors Also Will Consider Appointment of Road Commissioner

Members of the Outagamie county board will hold a special meeting, beginning at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the courthouse.

Thirteen new supervisors, who won seats at the election Tuesday will take their places on the board at that time. They are: Sylvester Eiler, Second ward, Kaukauna; James Thebo, village of Black Creek; Sam Eureka, Town of Dancer; J. Burdick, village of Black Creek; F. W. Huth, Second ward, Seymour; Richard Wickesberg, town of Black Creek; John McHugh, town of Freedom; Arthur Bergsbaken, town of Malne; Patrick Garvey, town of Malne; Patrick Garvey, town of Oneida; L. F. Bushy, town of Appleton; Ben Bell, Fourth ward, Kaukauna; F. O. Smith, village of Hortonville.

This is the largest number of changes in the county board ever made in a single year, it is said by members of the board. Seven supervisors were defeated in the race for reelection and six supervisors were elected to take the places of those who were not candidates to succeed themselves.

One of the first matters to be taken up by the board will be the election of a chairman. Supervisor Mike Mack of Shiocton now holds that office.

The board also will consider the matter of the appointment of a new highway commissioner to succeed A. G. Bruzewitz, who died about a month ago. Since his death the office has been temporarily taken care of by Frank Appleton, chairman of the highway committee.

Miss Stanley, Stald, district attorney, has ruled that the highway committee has the authority to fill the vacancy until Jan. 7, 1930, the committee has decided to take no action until it receives an expression of sentiment from the board.

The principal question which the board will be asked to decide is whether it will accept a proposal to engage a new engineer. It is said that supervisors from some of the rural districts are strongly opposed to an engineer as they point out that all that is needed is a man with executive and organizational ability.

Several supervisors from village and cities are supporting the proposal. The county board will elect a commissioner to succeed the committee's appointee in November. This man will not take over the office until Jan. 7, 1930.

NOTED BARITONE SINGS IN SCHOOL

Rollin Pease Presents Concert Before High School Student Body

Rollin Pease, distinguished bass baritone soloist of the Washington National Opera, will present a program Monday afternoon at Appleton high school as the sixth number of the assembly lecture course which is being sponsored by the Student Council of the school.

Mr. Pease is one of the many famous people who are now giving part of their time in appearing before high school audiences all over the country. According to reports of his performances, Mr. Pease offers a delightful and varied program with realistic interpretations of the general trend of the music of the selections he sings.

Only two more numbers remain on the lecture course. On May 6, Captain Donald Keyhoe, noted aviator and air of Lindbergh will speak on The Spirit of Aviation.

On May 17, Miss Sue Hastings Repertory Marionette Company, will give a performance. It was chosen by the Theatre Guild of New York. In competition with all other marionette companies, to play all their engagements. The Tatterman Marionettes who were first engaged and give the performances have broken their connection with the lecture association and so a much finer program than had been expected will be given. The Repertory Marionette Company is being sent direct from its engagements with the New York Theatre Guild to fill the dates of the lecture association.

The lecture course is being supported by voluntary student contributions at the high school.

APPLETON ENJOYS JUNE WEATHER IN 1ST WEEK IN APRIL

Appleton has been experiencing typical June weather the last few days, according to figures obtained from the United States weather bureau.

For the last 30 years the average temperature in April in Appleton at 7 o'clock in the morning and at 7 o'clock in the evening was 41 degrees above zero, in May the average temperature was 55 degrees, in June 65 degrees and in July 71 degrees. This morning the temperature at 7 o'clock was 66 degrees above zero, the average for June over a 20 year period.

These figures were taken from information received by S. D. Balliet from the United States weather bureau.

MAY INQUIRE INTO CREDIT SITUATION

board than is customary. The board has lined up against the Wall Street speculator. To this extent the political elements in congress from the middle west and west are trying to uphold the hands of the federal reserve board.

The opposition to the board comes from conservative centers, especially in the east or from large cities in the west like Chicago, where the bankers and some of their large depositors are having a constant debate as to the extension of credit for speculation.

There are echoes, of course, from the old money trust investigation carried on by the famous Pulo committee but nothing of that character is as yet visible on the horizon, though in the closing days of the last session there were outspoken demands for an inquiry into the operations of the new investment trust idea. The theory that large sums of money were being concentrated in the hands of a few individuals has been attacked as likely to produce a giant struggle between the speculative element and the groups which are engaged in supplying funds for the ordinary uses of business.

GLASS IS LEADER In view of the fact the Senator Glass of Virginia, has been a former secretary of the treasury and is one of the authors of the federal reserve act, he has been looked upon as a natural leader of the forces in the senate seeking to uphold the hands of the federal reserve board.

There is no likelihood, however, that an inquiry would be undertaken in the senate except in sympathy with the board, though in the House Chairman McFadden, of the banking and currency committee, has expressed himself as believing that the federal reserve board ought to leave things alone.

The chances are that the whole situation will change many times before congress reconvenes and that if the credit situation is easier and the controversy has passed its peak, the agitation for a congressional investigation will subside.

However, if business conditions become serious, congress is likely to show an inclination to inquire into the causes and effects of that development.

SENATE WILL VOTE FOR DRY LAW'S REPEAL

Canvass Shows Majority of Members of Body Will Support Measure

Milwaukee—(P)—The state senate will not be the stumbling block in the passage of the bill to repeal the Severe act, the state liquor enforcement law, a canvass of that body indicated Saturday.

Dry leaders, witnessing the devastation in their plans caused by the referendum on the repeal of the Severe act, had been pinning their hopes on the senate. They did not look to the assembly to vote against repeal of the bill because the lower houses' attitude has never been in doubt. The wets have a strong majority there, but in the senate the forces are more or less equal.

Strong administration supporters, however, declared their intentions of voting for repeal and many etymologists said they would vote for the repeal of the state law because their districts voted for repeal in the referendum election.

NO DOUBT IN HOUSE The case with which the repealer will pass the assembly was described by the statement of Assemblyman Chris N. Saugen, Eau Claire, long a staunch dry, that he would vote for repeal, for that was what the people wanted.

Statements of some of the senators who could be reached follow: Herman E. Boldt, Sheboygan Falls—I'm in favor, in a general way, of retaining the Severe law, but I have not made up my mind how I shall vote.

Conrad Shearer, Kenosha—I am a pronounced dry, but with the vote in my district 2 to 1 for repeal I think that I as senator of this district should vote for repeal.

John C. Schuman, Watertown—My inclination at this time is to obey the wishes of the people of my district and they voted for repeal. However, I want to analyze the referendum before I make my positive statement as to how I shall vote.

Herbert H. Smith, Milwaukee—I'm for it, that's all.

Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee—I'm satisfied with the outcome. There's no doubt of how I will vote. I am the author of the repeal bill.

Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee—My constituents voted a 12,000 majority for repeal and inasmuch as I am representing them I don't see what else I can do.

Senator W. S. Goodland, Racine—The verdict of the people is self-explanatory. My county went 8 to 4 for repeal and I consider that a mandate to the legislature.

WANTS PROMPT ACTION Bernard Getteman, Milwaukee—I believe that the will of the people should be carried out by the legislature. I'm going to suggest Tuesday that the senate act immediately on the repeal bill. It would be useless for people opposed to repeal to waste time and money coming out to Madison.

Glenn D. Roberts, Madison—I believe in the progressive principle that the people should rule and therefore I will be guided by the situation in my district, Dane co.

Carl B. Casperson, Frederic—I am not in favor of repealing the Severe act as long as we have the eighteenth amendment. I do not feel that Wisconsin should surrender.

Walter H. Hunt, River Falls—The Tenth district voted overwhelmingly against repeal of the Severe law. I shall carry out the voters' instructions.

Elmer S. Hall, Green Bay—You know how this district went in the referendum. With that momentum, I will be, in general, for repeal, but I do not care to commit myself definitely until I know the form the repeal bill will take.

MILLER FOR REPEAL Merritt F. White, Winnebago—I'm going to vote the way the people directed. Both Calumet and Winnebago counties voted very heavily for repeal.

William Markham, Horicon—The will of the people should be the law of the land. I am unqualifiedly for repeal.

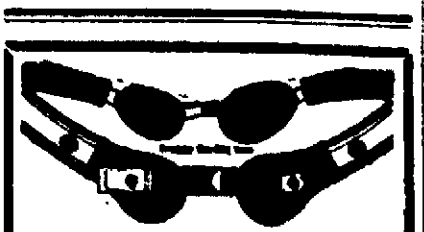

L. J. Fellenz, Fond du Lac—I will vote for repeal. The law is no good, anyway.

Anton M. Miller, Kaukauna—I'm for complete repeal.

John E. Cashman, Denmark—"I will vote for repeal."

CHICAGO HEARINGS CAST NEW LIGHT ON "RACKETS" SYSTEM

94 of Illicit Enterprises Said to Exist in This City Now

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Chicago—New light is being cast here on the modern methods of terrorism applied by systems of "rackets" which have grown of late to hamper businessmen in many sections of the country.

Two local hearings have served partly to lift the lid. They have disclosed the inner working of a reputed racket in the candy business and one in the slot machine business. Previously charges had been made which indicated racketeering methods in the electric sign field.

These revelations come at a time when the Employers' Association of Chicago asserts that its investigations indicate that "syndicates" of racketeers are being organized to operate chains in a number of cities. Ninety-four of these illicit enterprises are now pictured as functioning in Chicago.

The hearing which has yielded the most important information is directed against the Chicago Association of Candy Jobbers and is in federal court.

Testimony of witnesses has indicated that the association objected to the sale of candy by cigar stores. It was asserted that when these stores refused to conform to demands, their windows were smashed with $25 per window the sum paid for the smashing—and that stench bombs were later utilized.

One jobber, a former member of the association, withdrew his membership and testified that following his withdrawal a warehouse operated by him was bombed.

Inquiry into the Chicago slot machine racket has produced information showing that as much as $15,000 weekly was paid for protection in certain police districts. In return for this payment opposition slot machines were supposed to have been forced out of use by police activity.

It is through the action of this racket that homes of various local officials were bombed, according to some theories.

"We have learned that between $12,000 and $15,000 was paid out weekly for protection for the 6,000 slot machines that were in operation in the city at one time," the state's attorney's office advised. "Other important developments are expected from the investigation."

The local Employers' association reports that 34 rackets were put out of business during the last year, and at present 54 individuals are awaiting trial in federal courts, 14 in the county criminal courts and 21 in municipal courts, charged with operating the illicit enterprises. The attack on racketeering has become vigorous enough to cut local bombings to less than one a week.

SOTHERN BALKED FOR LONG TIME AT DISCUSSING STAGE

Considerable Persuasion Needed to Get Him to Present Talks

For a number of years E. H. Sothern was approached with various propositions that he should make a tour of the United States, giving talks on the stage and the art of acting and presenting in recital form scenes from the great plays he has presented in the theatre. Until now he always declined but this year he is appearing on the recital stage and will be heard in Appleton at Lawrence Memorial chapel on April 8.

"I am an actor, not a speaker," he always protested, though his occasional appearances before university audiences or civic societies indicated that on the lecture platform he was as successful as behind the footlights.

"At last I decided upon this series of addresses and recitals for two reasons. The first was the dearth of worthwhile plays and the second was that my present management convinced me that I might have something to say that would be of interest to the public.

"When in 1924 my wife, Julia Marlowe, became ill and we were forced to close our season, I decided that the following year I would appear alone and give Mrs. Sothern the opportunity to completely recover her health by a rest. With out her cooperation it was impossible to continue the Shakespearean repertory. So I turned to Modern plays. The following season I appeared in "Accused" by Brieux and the search for good plays continued. It was discouraging. Finally a modern Italian comedy was suggested to me. My whole experience in that convinced me that unless a new genius arose who could write another "Cyrano de Bergerac" I could not be happy in the theatre or satisfy audiences which had faithfully followed us through our many years of presenting Shakespeare and other sound dramas."

With considerable preparation Mr. Sothern has ventured on this tour. This is not his first experience however with this kind of work. During the war, as a member of America's Over Seas Theatre League he visited the front and recited scenes from Shakespeare. He always recalls with amusement and pleasure the protest that went up when he first undertook to entertain the boys with scenes from Shakespeare. When his recitals actually took place, he never appeared before more enthusiastic and eager listeners than these war-weary soldiers who sat spell-bound before Shakespeare's genius presented under conditions unique in the history of the world.

MORE BADGER CREAM IS SOUGHT IN EAST

Madison—(AP)—While many cars of Wisconsin milk and cream go to eastern markets such as Baltimore and Washington daily, an increased demand for cream was brought to the attention of Dairy and Food Commissioner Kremer by a representative of a large Boston dairy. He asked Mr. Kremer to list several reputable Wisconsin dairy concerns that could provide the Boston firm with several cars of cream daily.

Mr. Kremer announced that he had given the representative a list of about a dozen Wisconsin dairy concerns from which cream might be purchased and the Boston man had gone to interview officers of these firms.

The cream is wanted for manufacture of ice cream and for sale as coffee and whipping cream, the representative advised the dairy and food commissioner.

"He said the east and Boston, which already takes a few cars of Wisconsin milk, was becoming increasingly conscious of Wisconsin's standing as a dairy state," Mr. Kremer related. "While Boston is much nearer the New York dairy business than to Wisconsin dairy farms, there is a demand there for Wisconsin milk and cream, which may be shipped by fast freight in refrigerated cars or tank cars with ice machines."

About Time Payments
There is nothing wrong with the time payment or installment plan of paying—excepting that some people don't know how to use it—they abuse it.
Many families have acquired a home—furniture—washing machine, car, etc., on a small down payment and the balance on easy installments.
Some have abused the habit—buying on installments to an extent—greater than their income.
The Citizens plan is based on the investment idea—and our loans have accomplished wonders for hundreds of Appleton people. But be it in a good-out—discourage applicants for loans who abuse the honest and practical use of the plan.

CONVERTIBLE BOND IS SUBSTITUTE FOR "STRAIGHT" BONDS

Security Bond Is Offered With Possibility of Profit on Side

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
New York—For those who are not willing to substitute bonds for their common stocks which have had large advances in market price on the ground that they are thereby prevented from sharing in the future prosperity of the corporation, there remains the convertible bond of the one with a stock warrant attached.

Bonds carrying such privileges have been marketed by many industrial corporations in the past. The railroads have more recently adopted this plan of financing. The Atchafalaya did it last year and now the Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific have fallen into line.

The Southern Pacific has offered to its shareholders the right to subscribe to a new 4 1/2 per cent bond to which will be attached a stock purchase warrant entitling the holder to buy at any time on or before May 1, 1934 three shares of the common stock of the company at $145 a share. Southern Pacific stock sells well below this price now, but a call upon the stock on these terms may sometime be of value and it is this attraction on which the company relies for the sale of the bonds.

The Missouri Pacific has offered to its stockholders a 3 1/2 per cent bond which is convertible into common stock of that railroad at par at any time on and after May 1, 1931. Missouri Pacific common also sells now under the conversion privilege but the holder of the bonds receives better than a 5 1/2 per cent (the bonds are offered at 97 1/2) while he is waiting for the stock to advance to the conversion price.

In each case therefore the bondholder has the security of a bond with the possibility of profit from the enhancement in market price of the stock. There is just one drawback to this kind of a commitment and that is the price to be paid for the privilege. Both the Missouri Pacific and Southern Pacific new bonds will sell on a lower yield basis than the older bonds of those companies which do not carry stock warrants or conversion privileges. Under present circumstances, however, this price will be willingly paid.

RABIES SITUATION IS NOW UNDER CONTROL

Madison—(AP)—The rabies situation in Wisconsin, which assumed serious proportions for a few weeks in the early spring, is now well in control and no more county quarantines are expected, livestock sanitary board officers said today.

An occasional dog's head is sent to the laboratory for analysis and is found to have come from a dog affected by rabies, but there have been no further reports of human illness from the infected animals. The quarantines on dogs, however, remain in force ninety days from the date of the imposition.

Rheumatism Overcome by Walking

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rids the wearer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 29 Lee St., McKenzie, Tenn., is so anxious to move their statement that they are willing to send any sufferer their liberal trial offer. Write them today.

SCHEDULE HEARING ON PROPOSED BUS ROUTE

A hearing on the application of George Marks to operate a passenger bus service between Appleton and Fremont will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning, April 12, at the courthouse, according to a notice received Friday by Carl J. Besides the city clerk, notices of the hearing have been sent to the village clerk of Fremont, to the Independent Motor Coach Lines, 631 W. Atlantic, and to A. H. Losow, Minneapolis, commission counsel.

The commission scheduled the hearing to determine the necessity of the proposed bus lines.

2 COUNTIES APPROVE FOREST REFERENDUM

Adams and Forest-cos Hold Up Reputation of Favoring Wood Lands

Madison—(AP)—Adams and Forest-cos bore out the reputation of Wisconsin that "its people never refuse a referendum on forestry," in voting for county forests in Tuesday's election, the state conservation department has been advised.

Election figures at the state conservation office indicate that Forest county passed the referendum on the question "Shall the county establish a forest?" by almost a three to one vote.

A statement from the conservation commission said:

"People of Wisconsin have always voted almost unanimously in favor of forestry. First they approved a referendum, which was later declared unconstitutional by the supreme court on some technicality. To overcome this obstacle the people next amended the constitution in 1927. This amendment was approved by a two to one vote.

"Another constitutional amendment, approved in 1928, permitted the passage of the forest own law. At that time the issue was the equality clause in taxation. Landlord counties passed a county forest provision last fall, and now Adams and Forest counties have voted overwhelmingly in favor of reforestation. "The conservation commission feels county forests will become one of the big factors in carrying on a successful scheme of reforestation. This is particularly true in Wisconsin, according to Mr. Fred G. Wilson, Wisconsin forester of the commission, because in Wisconsin tax delinquent lands revert to the county rather than to the state. For this reason, the county is the logical unit to carry on forest land utilization plans. Mr. Wilson has worked unceasingly with different counties of the state in an effort to make the establishment of county forests uniform in the various counties.

MAYOR WANTS CITY TO STOP FLOOD LOSSES

Sewers Inadequate if They Must Carry Off Storm Water, Engineer Says

Menasha—Sewer and water matters occupied the greater part of the adjourned meeting of the common council Friday evening. The sewer proposition was introduced by Mayor W. E. Held. He said for the last three or four days he had numerous complaints about basements and cellars being flooded by property owners on the island and east end of the city. Some of the people complained of more than 20 inches of water in their cellars, and considering the amount of money that had been spent on sewers he could not understand why such conditions prevailed unless something was radically wrong, he said.

He did not blame people for complaining with conditions as they are and urged upon the aldermen the necessity of giving them immediate relief. City Engineer A. E. McMahon, called upon by the mayor to give his version of the situation, said it was due to property owners draining their eavespouts and back yards into sanitary sewers, which were never intended for that purpose and which are greatly overburdened usually at this time of the year.

SYSTEM ABUSED The state board of health does not permit of sanitary sewers being connected up with eavespouts and back yards and anyone who makes such connection is liable to a penalty, according to the engineer. The engineer went into a detailed description of the sewer system planned by the city several years ago, but said it is not working out the way it was planned for the reason it is being abused.

Mr. McMahon said the city at the present time has 13 miles of sanitary sewer. At first no storm sewer connections were permitted but of late the law applying no them has not been enforced and it is no uncommon thing to see a low lot thoroughly drained and a higher one near by covered with backwater. Mayor Held said some plan will have to be worked out to relieve conditions without using the fire department pump which has been temporarily called into service.

As to the water rates Mayor Held said they should have been gradually raised over a period of several years instead of the increase being forced on consumers all at once. In regard to the dollar extra charge for roomers he expressed the opinion that in some cases it worked out as an unjust burden to taxpayers.

After a lengthy discussion and considerable see-sawing a motion was passed for an investigation of the one dollar charge made for roomers.

Mrs. Pawer, Second-st., appeared before the council and said she had suffered considerable damage by water in her cellar. She also took exception to a water bill mailed her by the water department and objected to a bill for road oil.

Note of the municipal election was canvassed and the successful candidates to notify the successful candidates of their election. The canvassing committee appointed by Mayor Held consisted of Aldermen Kolasinski and Kelly.

The water and light committee submitted a report on water pipe needed and the clerk was authorized to call for bids returnable on April 23.

Preliminary steps were taken looking to the removal of the interurban tracks from Third, Racine, Main and Washington-sts. The city attorney was instructed to draw up a resolution favoring certain bills before the legislature sponsored by the Wisconsin League of Municipalities. A communication from the state board of health relative to contamination by cross connections was read and placed on file.

The monthly report of the commission of poor showed that 18 families were aided during the month of March at an expenditure of $259.50.

The monthly financial report showed the following balances and deficits on March 31: General fund, balance, $107,674.91; water and light, balance, $54,936.91; board of education, deficit, $27,156.90; industrial board, deficit, $1,008.75; library board, balance, $22,657.57; firemen pension fund, balance, $9,411.47; cemetery fund, balance, $4,648.50; park and recreation deficit, $11,748.50.

Tourney Ends H. S. Cage Careers For 6 Neenah Boys

Neenah—The high school basketball team arrived home Friday night from Madison where it played in the annual state tournament, conducted at the University of Wisconsin gymnasium. The team failed to place this year, losing its first game to Ladysmith by a score of 27 and 24. It won its second game from Nekoosa by a score of 17 and 16 and losing its third game Friday afternoon to Columbus by a score of 22 and 21. Failing to get anywhere in the championship games after losing the first game, the team turned its attention toward the consolation prize but failed in that also. All games were closely played and on several occasions it appeared that Neenah Rockets were on the way for a win only to be downed in the last quarter. This will be perhaps Neenah's last chance at a state tournament for a few years because new material will have to be developed from among players who are coming up in the school, although there will be several players of merit remaining as a nucleus for next year's team. All of the eight men taken to Madison got in some of the games. Several of the players, Johnson, Schneller, Thermanson, Gaertner and Ehler, were on the last year team which took third place at the state tournament. Schneller, playing in three games, made 27 points; Gaertner, 14; Neubauer, five; Stacker and Johnson each four; Thermanson and Ehlers, each three and Jrogan, two. This will end the high school basketball careers of the Neenah boys.

SEEK GAME PRESERVE TO SAVE PHEASANTS

Want to Close 200 Acres on Winchester Land to Hunters

Neenah—The Twin City Sportsman club has made arrangements for leasing a 200-acre tract of land just west of the Winchester hill in town of Winchester, on which to release the pheasants which the club has been raising. There will be 13 birds in the first flock with 70 more in the summer. The club also will petition the conservation commission to set this tract of land aside as a game preserve so the funds can be protected against hunters. At present the season is closed for two years on pheasant hunting and if those released are protected and hunters kept out of the woods in which they have been released, in two years there should be plenty of hunting for this game in this vicinity.

DEFER ACTION ON SMOKE ORDINANCE

Will Seek Cooperation of Chimney Owners Before Taking Drastic Action

Neenah—A general smoke ordinance will not be drafted until such time as those owning chimneys about the city refuse to cooperate with the efforts of city officials to abate the nuisance, it was decided Friday evening at a meeting of the special council committee. As there are many stacks and chimneys about the city which throw out much smoke, but which cannot be classed as nuisances, a general smoke ordinance would effect several which are not in any way creating a nuisance. The committee decided to visit those whose chimneys have been declared a nuisance and make some arrangements whereby the practice will be stopped.

RADIO RELIEF MAY ATTRACT CONGRESS AT COMING SESSION

Hurried Consolidation Believed Necessary to Ward Off Competition

BY ROBERT MACK (Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association)

Washington—Radio legislation, as well as farm relief and tariff may hold the attention of the special session of congress which convenes ten days hence. This is reflected in the condition provoked by the announced intention of the Radio Corp. of America and International Telephone and Telegraph company to merge their globe-encircling communications facilities once the legal barriers are removed.

President Hoover and several members of the cabinet have been approached by officials of the R. C. A. and I. T. & T., and were told of the urgency of the situation if the United States is to fight off the threat of the British communications merger, and fusions of radio and cable in other foreign nations. The two companies and other interferences of this country, have their eyes fixed on the British developments, while hoping for expeditious action by congress in eliminating the restrictive "Section 17" of the radio act, which prevents the joint ownership of operation of wires and wireless.

General James G. Harbord, president of R. C. A. with its trans-oceanic radio services entering thirty countries, and Sosthenes Behn, president of the I. T. & T. which now embraces the cable and telegraph systems of the Mackay companies, conferred with President Hoover on Monday. The president's attitude as to the merger was not divulged after the hour's conference. There is, however, the likelihood that President Hoover will make specific recommendations to congress in his message opening the special session and which he now is drafting.

DETAILS ARE DISCUSSED All of the details of the international communications problems were discussed at the conference with the president, himself well-informed on the subject. The proposition under which the R. C. A. will turn over to the IT&T its trans-oceanic and ship radio systems for some $100,000,000 in IT&T stock, and thereby set up the most powerful and far reaching communications monopoly in the world was outlined. In this way only can the United States hold its present supremacy in international communications, the president was told.

In the meantime unofficial word comes from Great Britain that Sir Basil Blackett, recognized as Britain's financial genius, has been appointed chairman and directing head of the unified British system, known as the Empire Communications company. This company which began operation on April 1, comprises the Eastern telegraph, Marconi, Pacific Cable, West Indies cable and the beam radio stations of the British postoffice, combined as a monopoly by government edict and under private ownership. It was created ostensibly to save the cable

INSTALL MOTOR TO TURN BRIDGE ON MILL STREET

CURVE OF POWER CONSUMPTION IS STILL GOING UP

After Easter Activity Is Remarkable, Manufacturers Report

BY J. C. ROYLE Copyright 1929

New York—The curve of power consumption continues upward. This is highly significant of the industry's activity, since the long daylight hours have reduced the amount of current consumed for lighting below the level maintained throughout the winter.

There may be some uncertainty expressed in ultra-conservative circles regarding the cost of financing future commercial requirements but this is not universal and many believe industry has not yet reached the peak for the moment.

In fact, the activity after the Easter period has been remarkable. The steel mills are functioning at 95 per cent or better in some cases. Prices are firm and the demand is steady. Building activities are making up for the drop in oil country goods. The fine position of the automobile industry is shown by the heavy buying of full finished steel sheets.

TURN DOWN ORDER

One Mahoning valley producer declared Friday he had to turn down the largest specification for sheets he has ever refused owing to inability to meet delivery requirements. The building construction program is perhaps slightly behind the other key industries. This is attributed, however, to the temporary stiffening of building loan rates. The passage of the Lenton season has been signalized by a remarkable improvement in the amusement lines. The legitimate theatres have been filled and many successes have put on extra matinees this week to accommodate the crowds. Athletic events of every description have been well attended. Some of the big league ball clubs, whose pennant chances are brightest have been sold out on reserve seats for the opening companies from possible extinction by the competition of the Marconi and government radio systems. In the United States, however, it is viewed as an effort to wrest from this country its leadership in worldwide communications, both cable and radio.

The new company, according to this report, is capitalized at $150,000,000, with the present values of its securities about $275,000,000. It is to have a standard net revenue of six per cent, and all extra net profits are to go half to the shareholders and half to the reduction of rates, says this report.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

NEW CHEVROLET IS HARMONY OF COLOR

Art and Color Division of Company Studies Color Preferences

Watching the new Chevrolet as it noses gracefully through traffic or presses forward eagerly on some highway, you may have wondered how its various color blendings are conceived, and why they appear in such perfection. You might have guessed that so alert an organization as General Motors does nothing haphazardly, that there must be a special department in charge of color creation. And if such was your guess you were right.

The Art and Color Division of General Motors is the source of all the color schemes which enhance every General Motors car from the graceful Chevrolet to the baronial Cadillac. Here colors are evolved systematically, the same degree of efficiency prevailing that is found in the sales and manufacturing divisions. Nothing is left to guess work.

The studio, in charge of Captain H. Ledyard Towle, has a research department without any known duplicate in the world. Chief among its functions is to keep the art staff constantly posted as to the fluctuating color preferences in America and abroad, for styles in color, as in other things, are known to move in cycles.

Constant check is being made to ascertain which is the reigning color blend in the exclusive dress making salons, in the kitchens and bathrooms of America, in the art galleries of the world. A complete library of art magazines, and automobile trade journals is kept on file. Sales figures from all General Motors units are studied with deference to color.

Although the artists might know with certainty that the color most popular on the Riviera last winter was green, no restraint is placed on their originality. While Captain Towle's staff attempts to give the public what it wants during a particular season, it is axiomatic that some new hue will be favored next season and General Motors artists in the opinion of Captain Towle might just as well be sponsor to the new vogue as some leading Parisian gown maker.

When a new car is about to be marketed or a color change desired on an existing model, the artists busy themselves at their palettes, each achieving his idea of the proper color or harmony. When a half dozen or more suitable combinations are finished the work is submitted to the manufacturer.

Here are a group of artists to sales minded that they have forgotten the traditional artistic ego. They listen willingly, eagerly to the reactions of the shrewd sales manager and the practical production chief. At these conferences the jury system prevails, and thus from a group of possible combinations, the salesman, the artist and the production expert finally agree upon which is to be used. Captain Towle credits pyroxylin with the current color invasion of industry. By its used cars which formerly required days to paint can now be completed in a few hours. Now that beauty can be had without costly delay, industry in almost every line is busy coloring its products.

People are growing to like objects more and more each day. Captain Towle says, and he points to colored clocks, pencils and bath-tubs as proof of his assertion. All of these signs indicate, he believes, that America is entering into an artistic renaissance comparable to the famous Italian renaissance with American industrialists acting as patrons as did the nobles of the other period.

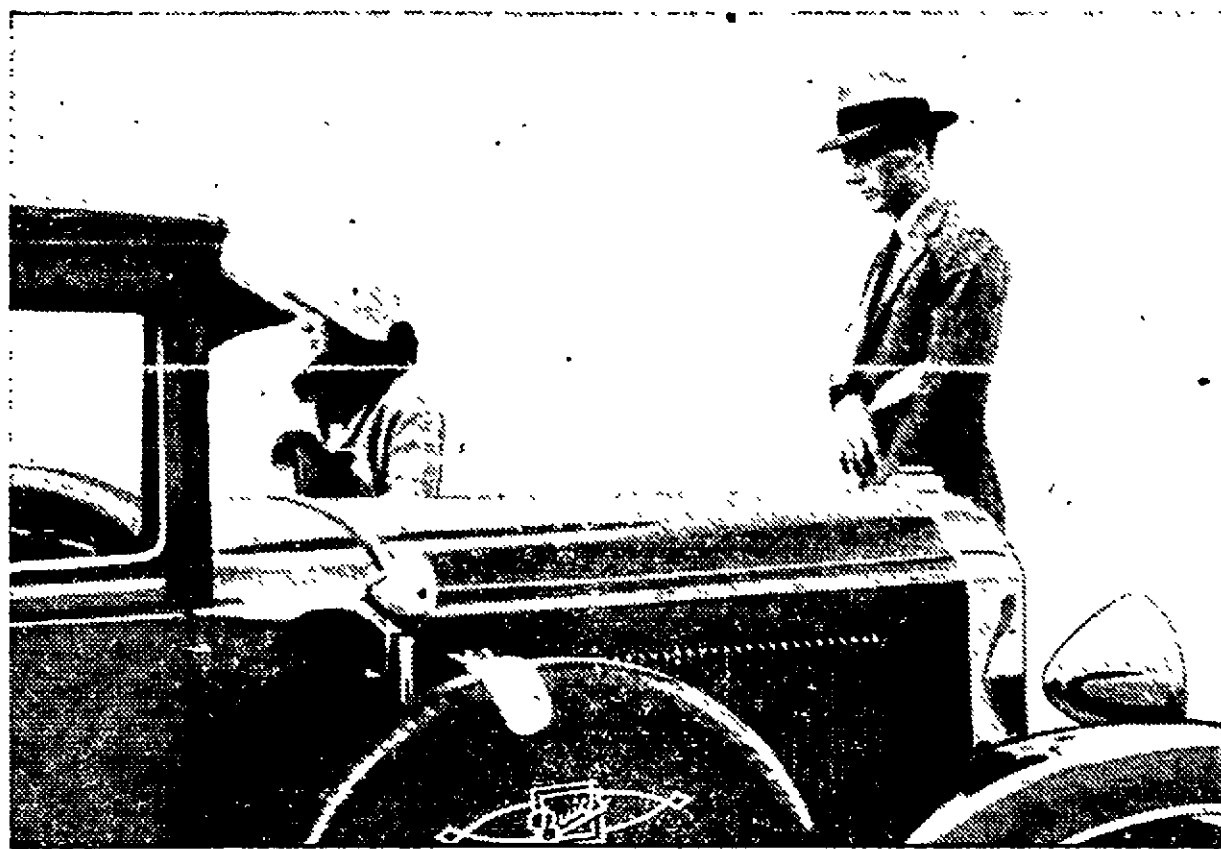

The Chevrolet is sold and serviced in Appleton by the S. and O. Chevrolet Co., 511 West College Ave.

THE MODERN CYCLOPES

The Cyclopes of ancient mythology were one-eyed monsters, ignorant of law and order and fearing neither gods nor men. The Cyclopes of today are mechanical one-eyed monsters—motor cars with but one headlamp burning—streaking their perilous way down the highways at night, a danger to those they carry and those they pass.

But no wise motorist wants to be a Cyclopes and no one who values his own well-being should drive at night without full light as a protection to himself and to others. As soon as a light goes out, the source of trouble should be located and the remedy immediately applied.

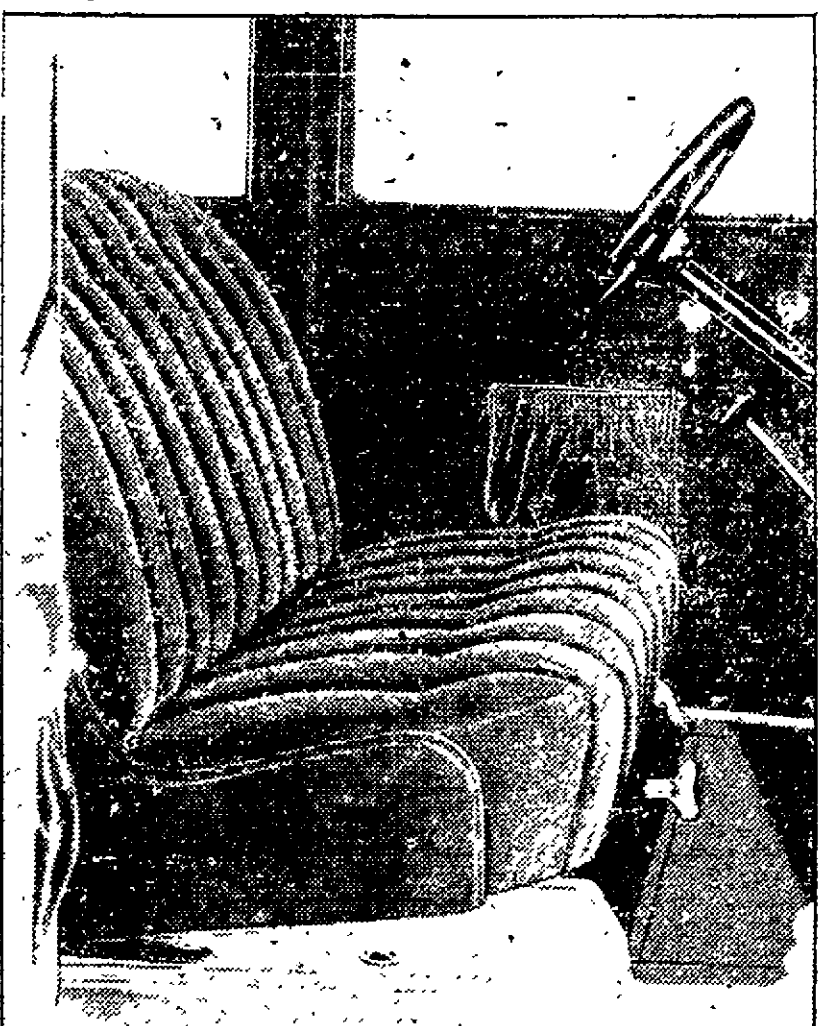

BURNT OUT BULB USUAL CAUSE
Often a "one-eyed" car means a motorist who is unable to find and correct the trouble, or one who does not carry the tools and supplies necessary for minor repairs. In most cases the trouble will be in a burnt-out bulb. It cannot be in the switch, or both lamps would be out. Accordingly, the wise motorist who makes it a point to carry a lamp kit with spare bulbs will correct the trouble in a few minutes.

If the lamp rim is of the type that is pressed in and turned when removed, it may be necessary to put a strip of friction tape around the rim in order to get a good grip. This is especially true if the rim has not been taken off for some time and the parts are rusty.

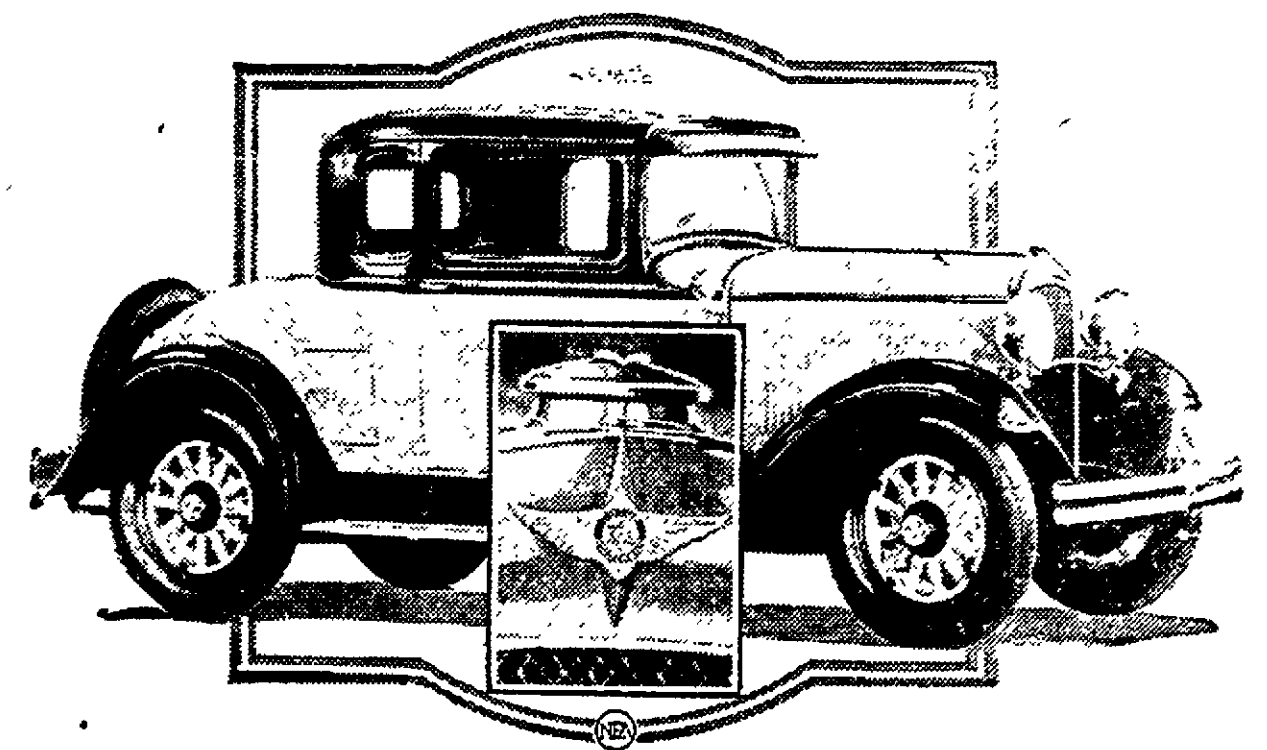

If the old bulb is black or it can be seen that the filament is burnt in two, it is evident that a new bulb is needed. If in doubt, try the new

GRAHAM-PAIGE HAS $1,055,678 PROFIT

Organization Recovers Under Management of Three Graham Brothers

Net profits of $1,055,678.62 are shown in the annual report of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation for 1928, covering the first full year's operations of the company under the new management headed by the three Graham brothers as against a loss of $4,842,551.06 for the preceding year, before the introduction of the completely new line of motor cars bearing the name Graham-Paige.

During the year ending December 31, 1928, the report states, 72,556 Graham-Paige motor cars were marketed, an increase of 51,054, or 233 per cent, over the preceding year's sales of the models previously offered.

Graham-Paige sales in 1928, it is stated in the letter accompanying the report, which will be submitted to the stockholders today, represent the greatest first year's total in dollar volume of any new line of cars in automobile history.

The report shows that $5,000,038.59 was invested in plant improvements and expansion during the year and that factory floor space was more than doubled, now totaling 2,017,430 square feet.

The three Graham brothers acquired ownership control of the Palmyra Motor Car company in June, 1927, and at the beginning of 1928 had completed their reorganization plans. In January, 1928, they announced the introduction of the Graham-Paige line, the first passenger cars to bear their name. At the same time, the name of the company was changed to Graham-Paige Motors Corporation.

In the management of the company, the board of directors states, four major objectives were sought during 1928, as follows:

First, to build up and maintain public confidence in the name and the product of Graham-Paige; second, to develop a line of motor cars of outstanding performance, comfort, appearance and value; third, to expand and co-ordinate manufacturing facilities for efficient and economical production; and fourth, to develop and enlarge a dealer organization possessing "the three essential qualifications of character, capability and capital."

FIND HEAVIER TIRE WEAR WITH SPEED

Fifteen Miles an Hour Increase in Speed Doubles Rate of Tread Wear

That the rate of tread wear is doubled with an increase of but fifteen miles an hour, has been proved by Miller test men.

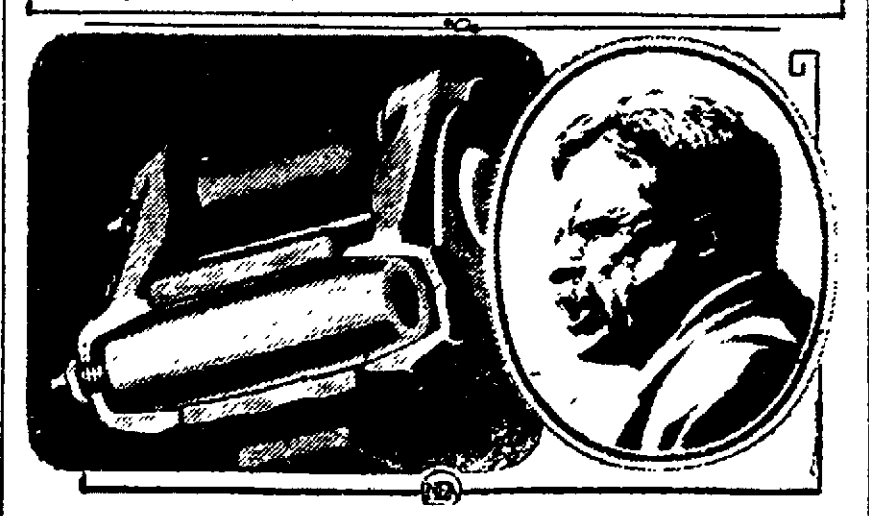

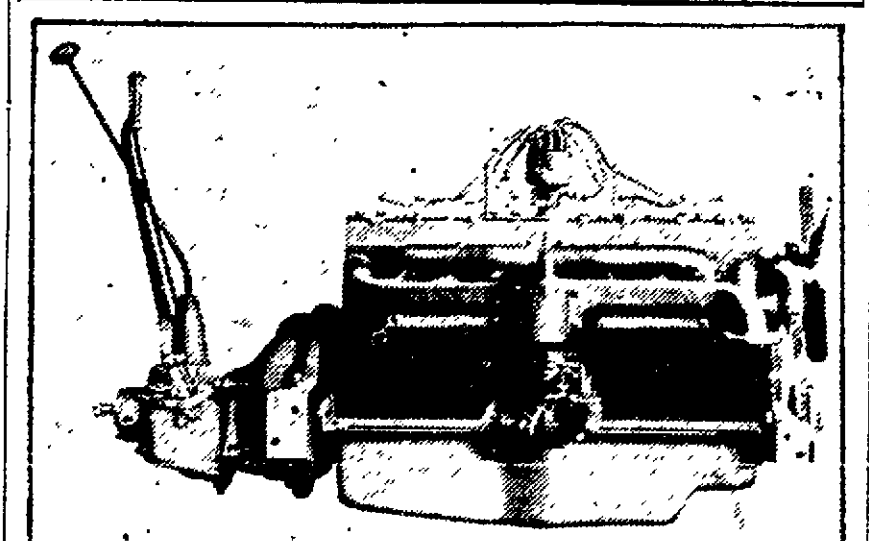

It was found after exhaustive tests by Miller test fleets, that cars traveling at 35 miles and then increased to 50 miles per hour, would show double the rate of tread wear at 50 miles that was shown at 35 miles. This means that an increase of 15 miles per hour, over a 35 mile speed, would double the rate of tread wear.

But that is not the only result of fast driving and the heat that naturally follows. Under such a strain, the carcass of a tire, will become softer—there will be more give and play in the cords of the carcass—and the whole carcass will weaken.

For this reason and to better serve the car owners who are not satisfied unless they are speeding, Deluxe and super tires are being built with greater strength in carcasses and much thicker treads. These tires are built to take the punishment of high speed, and still give extra mileage—some of them lasting as long as the average man keeps his car.

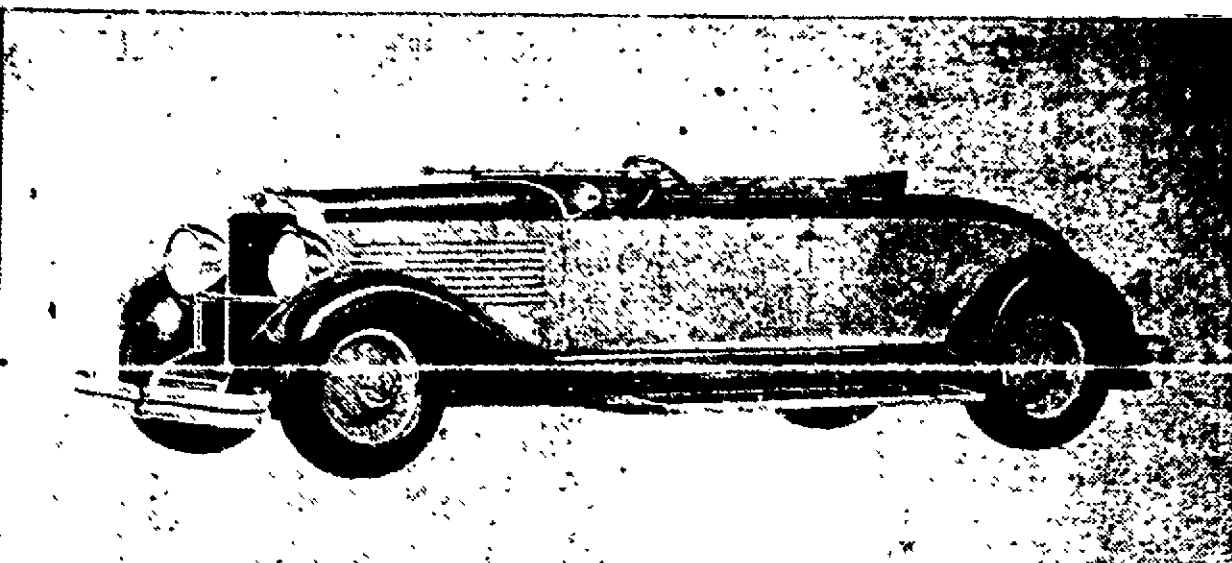

Miller regular cords and Miller Deluxe Tires are sold at the Appleton Tire Shop, 128 E. College Ave.

New Nash "400" Special Roadster

In this handsome new Special Six Roadster, The Nash Motor Company has produced a new type model that meets the American open car ideal in every line. High waisted and low seated, it is a rare combination of style and comfort for people who like coupes. Doses of blue skies and windings, beckoning roads with their motoring mileage. It is a fun, wide awake car, designed with long, sweeping body lines, actuated appearance. It is a color symphony of light, deep cedar and beige—the fenders and upper body in the new cedar shade, and center side panels in beige. Five wire wheels in light orange are standard equipment. Their special design includes extra large hub caps with hub nuts skilfully concealed. Horizontal louvers in the hood, and chromium fitting of lamp brackets, lamp to rods and upright posts in addition to all other light metal parts on the car, leaves it a real masterpiece.

Other interesting features of the Roadster include a chromium plate framed windshield of the flat folding type, 1-2 skin upholstery with tire cover and top boot of material to match and a top which folds down to a four-inch, booted thickness to enhance the grace of the body silhouette. Special passenger comfort is evidenced by the extra wide cushion which is set in the exceptionally low seat, and the arm rest division which fits back into the rear cushion when not in use. Arm rests are also provided in each side door for the further convenience of driver and passenger. Further information can be supplied by the Appleton Nash Company, 527 W. Col. Ave.

FORD COMPLETES TRIP THROUGH ALPS

Completes Non-stop Run of Six Days With Hood Sealed

In the belief that abrupt, long and stiff hills will prove the endurance and power of a motor, an official test of the Ford Model A was made recently with the Switzerland Alps as a proving ground. No attempt was made for distance or speed, the sole object being to determine the reliability and power. That was accomplished by having the car run night and day without stopping for six days, during which it covered all of the well-known Alpine passes in Switzerland.

The fact that the trip was made when roads and climatic conditions in the mountain were bad is further evidence of the stability of the Ford car. A strictly standard Model A Ford with Tudor body was used. Zurich was the starting point; its hood was officially sealed by a representative of the township. Two persons occupied the car, the driver and his relief.

Passing through Lucerne and the Grindel Pass, the car took the Pizcha Pass at an altitude of 2,331 meters, then the St. Gothard Pass down the Italian lakes through all the large Swiss towns and back to Zurich. On its return the seals were examined by the official who had placed them on the hood and were found intact.

In each town the car was stopped, but not the motor. It ran constantly from the time the car was started in Zurich until the return six days later.

The course is one of the most difficult in Europe. In addition to the hard road the driver had to combat such obstacles as snow, mist, floods of sheep and herds of cattle, frequently detouring on trails that were little more than paths.

GRAHAM PAIGE OUTPUT TOUCHES NEW RECORD

This year's production of Graham-Paige motor cars reached a total of 21,350 cars on March 20, equalling the entire year's production of the factory in 1927, before the Graham-Paige was presented by the three Graham brothers.

Last year, when the factory attained on May 2, the total of the previous year, it was regarded as a remarkable achievement of the new management. This year, the same total has been reached just 40 days earlier.

The oldest steamship in the world is said to be the barque Constance, built in 1723 and now in use as a training ship at Copenhagen.

THE PROHIBITION IMPASSE
Illogical and futile as we think the performance was, Wisconsin's vote on the referendum to repeal the Severson act and to authorize 2.75 per cent beer constitutes an impressive protest against prohibition. People within Wisconsin, and a newspaper like the Chicago Tribune which is trying to overthrow the eighteenth amendment by rebellion rather than by constitutional methods, are apt to magnify its importance. Whether Wisconsin would actually vote to repeal the eighteenth amendment we do not know, nor do we think the vote of Tuesday is conclusive evidence, although naturally the wets insist it is proof that it would. However that may be, Wisconsin has been known as a wet state. The great majority of states look at it as a peculiar phenomenon in political and social psychology in more respects than one.

The repeal of the Severson act is now assured, and we take it for granted Governor Kohler will sign it irrespective of his personal views. If, however, an attempt is made by the legislature to legalize the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer, the governor would be in duty bound to veto the act. Whereas repeal of the Severson law has some justification in color, a measure to authorize the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer is not only illegal in itself, but is an open violation of the constitution of the United States and of federal legislation. It would have no standing either in court or at the bar of public opinion.

Touching the practical side of prohibition, resistance has now entered upon a new phase. We do not hear quite so much about vices of drinking, flask-carrying and the bootlegger. The excesses of enforcement are being utilized and some of it effectively, to foster opposition to the eighteenth amendment. Killings like that of Mrs. De-King in Illinois and many others which appear to have been without sufficient justification, are undoubtedly causing a reaction against the whole experiment. Deplorable as these incidents are in themselves, they are not so serious as the chaos toward which the country seems to be drifting.

It does no good to argue that the majority of the people of the United States wish to preserve prohibition, whether that be a fact or not. The truth remains that we are getting nowhere toward more settled order and constructive results. Defiance of the law and constitution has become formidable and it is now being openly advocated. Feeling is intense and bitter. On the other side, fanaticism stands in the way of ameliorating the evils and inconsistencies of prohibition and seeking a sane solution of the liquor problem.

While the dries have the law on their side up to date, that may count for nothing in the end. The deplorable part of the impasse is the refusal on the part of the dries to recognize the defects and injustices and vices of an impossible tyranny they have set up, and of the wets to have recourse to constitutional methods and orderly processes. It looks like a fight to the finish, with reason thrown to the winds and force substituted in its place. Unfortunately for them and the country the American people do not compromise in such a situation. They seem to prefer excesses and blows. Frank recognition of certain fundamental facts about the errors of prohibition and the inviolability of law and constitution if our system of government is to survive, would soon adjust the controversy and correct an intolerable situation.

BEFUDDLING THE LAW
A New York lawyer, sentenced to two and one-half years in the penitentiary for grand larceny and receiving stolen goods, gets a drastic lecture from the judge. The defendant was found guilty four years ago. His punishment has been held up ever since by a course of clever legal obstruction involving 37 different court moves, including appeals to the highest state courts on technical grounds.

"The verdict was warranted," says the judge. "Your guilt was plain. You had a fair trial and you were defended by an able attorney. You are as bad a criminal as we ever have had in these courts. You are trained in the law. You planned this criminal operation. If you only would, you could enlighten the district attorney as to the identity of the master minds in the Wall street robbery. The record of this case shows a deliberate attempt to delay and obstruct justice."

Be it said to their credit that it is not often lawyers use their cleverness and knowledge of the law to prevent or defer their own punishment. But most of them use all their resources habitually to tie knots in the law and obstruct justice when representing clients of whose guilt there is no doubt. It is a curious thing, too, when you consider that every lawyer is in theory an officer of the court, pledged by his oath and supposed by professional tradition to act as a public servant in the promotion of justice. Every accused citizen, of course, has a right to legal defense. But why should that right be extended to the bedevilment of justice through a complicated legal game for lawyers' benefit at the expense of the public?

TEACHING WOMEN TO DRIVE
A large automobile club and safety council have announced a driving school for women. More than 400 women enrolled in the first week. The school is to be limited to 1,500, but there are likely to be more than that many applicants.

The purpose of the course is to teach women automobile drivers more about their cars and the traffic regulations under which they operate. The course will be given through a nine-week period. It is open to women who are learning to drive or who are planning to learn to drive, or women who are now driving and who want to know more about a car's mechanism.

Local automobile manufacturers and dealers and the traffic division of the police department are cooperating with the driver's school. With such support, the course ought to be quite thorough and should result in correcting many of the faults skilful men drivers complain of in the women drivers they meet in traffic.

Knowledge of the mechanical operation of their cars should be a big help in making better drivers of women. Men have said women do not understand the working either of their household machinery or their automobiles. Women have replied that they have never been taught such things in schools or elsewhere. That excuse is fast disappearing.

SILENT HERB
Calvin Coolidge bad, and still has, the reputation of being a very silent man. That reputation is not altogether deserved. He is really a man of few words in his personal relations. He lacks the gift or habit of small talk. He does not converse with those around him unless he feels that he has something to say. But Coolidge as a public man has been far from taciturn. He has made many speeches on a wide range of topics. He has written messages of great length. His correspondence has been extensive. He will probably be found to have expressed himself publicly to a much greater extent than most presidents.

President Hoover, too, is considered a rather silent man. And this reputation also is probably undeserved. But there is an interesting contrast. He is not given to speeches, as Mr. Coolidge was. Apparently he is going to make as few addresses as possible, and they may be expected to be short. But in his personal intercourse, while never loquacious, he has shown himself so far in his presidential career more disposed to self-expression than his predecessor. He takes the press fully into his confidence. He speaks readily, for quotation by the newspapers, on topics of all kinds. He is said to be much freer and easier in his official conferences than was expected.

On the whole, either of these statesmen can be regarded as silent only when compared with such a tell-the-world president as Roosevelt.

DECLARATION OF WAR
Twelve years ago today—at 3 o'clock in the morning—the House of Representatives passed a resolution, which the Senate had passed two days before, declaring war against Germany.

The vote in the Senate had been 82 to 6. The vote in the House was 373 to 50. The joint resolution was signed by Thomas R. Marshall, vice president, Champ Clark, speaker of the House, and approved by President Wilson, on this date in 1917.

Our entrance into the greatest armed conflict in history followed the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany, Feb. 3, after that country had begun its campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare and 200 Americans had lost their lives on the high seas. In addition, our commerce had been interfered with, and intrigues had been plotted against our neutrality and security.

Two days after the resolution declaring war was adopted, the Austrian charge d'affaires in Washington asked for his passports because his country was an ally of Germany. It was not, however, until Dec. 7, 1917, that war was formally declared against Austria-Hungary.

A VERY BAD EAR COUGH
Today, friends, we're going to make an earnest effort to finish the story about Bill the Busy's Elephant Cough. Here's a brief synopsis of the story thus far: Bill had an "elephant cough." One of the very best doctors (that's the author) couldn't find a thing wrong with Bill's chest, though a lot of old ladies were satisfied that Bill's bronchial tubes were all shot, if his lungs were not weakened beyond hope of rebuilding. Then one Monday morning Bill reported he had gone deaf in right ear since Saturday night and the eminent physician and author found a plug of hardened wax in Bill's ear, deducing from this evidence that a little water had gotten into Bill's ear and swelled the plug, bringing on deafness. But as announced in an earlier issue, that wasn't the remarkable part of it at all and—

Usually it is possible to remove such accumulations of cerumen from the ear canal by syringing with agreeably warm water containing a little saleratus. But Bill was a tough customer and the (now well known) doctor had to use the instruments to deliver the mass. It was at this juncture that we made the discovery. I deem discovery but a mild term for it. Indeed the event was epochal, a great moment in history, though the papers said little or nothing about it at the time—the papers are trying to make amends for the oversight now.

In prying and prodding around in there with the ear spud or myrtonotome and absent-mindedly wondering about how thin Bill's inner skull might be and whether there was any gray matter to speak of on the other side—Bill was only a grocer, it should be remembered—the doctor evidently stirred up some nerve or other, for every time the instrument touched a spot on the wall of the ear canal Bill did his elephant and the noise that our popular traveling salesman characterized as such a cough.

Just how many bottles of the latest and best recommended cough medicine Bill had consumed up to the time of the great discovery is too painful to remember now, but no matter. The particular concoction he was "on" at the time of the discovery worked like a charm, for Bill's cough was never heard again after the ear canal had been cleared out.

It seems that the Creator, for some inscrutable reason, runs a little branch of the great vagus nerve to the rear wall of the outer ear canal. The vagus nerve is the tenth cranial nerve and is the main sensory nerve of the lungs and bronchial tree. Irritation of the little branch in the ear canal produces coughing that is as vehement and as impressive to the audience as the coughing produced by trouble in the bronchial passages.

The epochal discovery to which I allude was just that. To be sure, the doctor had learned all about the accumulations and distribution of the great vagus nerve as a medical student, but if any of his instructors ever told him the student didn't believe that a trifling accumulation of wax in a person's ear would or could cause such an elephant cough, as Bill had, not until Bill made him believe it.

No matter how powerful the cough medicine nor how faithfully the patient follows directions, a doctor can't do much for a bad ear cough unless he looks his patient squarely in the ear.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

JOE, WITH HIS PAPERS, LIKE A HORATIO ALGER HERO, IS ONE OF NEW YORK'S

New York—Our own "who's who" of Manhattan. Joe can't be more than nine. Stationed, as he is, at a Fifth avenue corner where grand dames swish silkily by, Joe is like something out of Horatio Alger. Leaning against his favorite fire hydrant, calling his favorite newspaper in a childish piping voice, Joe seems just slightly taller than his prep. With a cap tilted over one side of his face, he might be Jackie Coogan or Davie Lee in a film stunt. But Joe is real . . . too touchingly real, if you'd ask me. Joe is working for a living at a ritzy corner when most kids his age are first learning to spin tops.

Joe is part and parcel of New York. Fitting neatly into the incongruous pattern from which the city is made, he is, obviously, "planted" at his corner by some shrewd newspaper circulator. And, sure enough, hundreds of people comment . . . "how cute" . . . when they pass. Conductors of street cars, held up by traffic, hop off to buy their papers from him. And yet, as might be expected in Manhattan, Joe seems to do anything about Joe. They all thing he's cute and precocious beyond his years—but they let him stand there, in blizzard, rain and sunshine, making his few pennies and running home with them. In any small city of this realm, Joe would have been long since given his chance.

And there's Gus. Gus is blind, and as old as Joe is young. His stand is near the exit of the Pennsylvania Station. He sits all day on a box, his head bared to the sun when there is a sun and bundled against the elements when the elements are unfriendly. During the course of a day thousands hurry by the stand on which his papers are piled.

"And I never want to leave this spot," Gus will tell you, "because it keeps me in touch with a world I have never seen. As the trav-

THIS HAS HAPPENED
RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, Monday morning sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office.

McMann, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by Jack's admission that he came back to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon and by the testimony of elevator boys MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER. BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, unwillingly admits having heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning.

The detective sergeant questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LEROY MILLER, elevator boys; CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard.

MARTHA MANNING, is brought into the case by Ruth's clever detective work. She swears she last saw Borden on Friday night and challenges McMann to bring forward anyone who saw her in the building Saturday. Ruth knows that headquarters is pushing McMann for an arrest and she believes Jack is soon to be thrown into jail. McMann gives her his permission to leave the office for an hour and she returns strangely jubilant from this, mysterious journey. In the lobby of the building she finds a commotion. RAMON ROMERO, Rita's husband, is struggling with two detectives who have disarmed him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER

When the elevator doors opened at the seventh floor, Ruth Lester ran ahead to open the door to Borden's suite. Ramon Romero's frantic efforts to escape were occupying the entire attention of both the policeman and the detective.

Another of those shameful tableaux that follow in the wake of murder and of which Ruth had seen enough in the last 30 hours to last her all lifetime, she had ever craved morbid excitement, met her eyes.

In a chair drawn up to the large "library" table in the center of Borden's reception room, the exhausted body of a woman half sat, half lay, her head resting on the table, her arms outflung in a gesture of infinite weariness. And crouching over her, so that the breath of his menacing words stirred the dark, dissolved hair, was Detective Sergeant McMann.

"Sure, I'll let you rest and I'll let you eat and I'll let you have a drink, when you come clean, Rita! You robbed Borden's dead body! That's all I'm accusing you of! That's all! Come on now, Rita—get it over with!"

Neither Rita Dubois nor the detective had heard Ruth's almost noiseless opening of the door, but when a moment later, Ramon Romero, dragged to the door by his captors, spat out a foreign oath, the girl's body became electrified, was out of the chair too quickly for human eyes to take in each of her cat-like movements.

"Ramon! Oh, my God! Now they've got you!"

The too-handsome, swarthy face of the prisoner became convulsed with hatred as his eyes took in the horrified face of his wife, but McMann roughly interrupted the torrent of Spanish invectives by ordering the detective to bring in his quarry.

"Where did you find him, Casey?" the detective sergeant asked his subordinate, when the male dancer had been rudely forced down into a chair at the table across from his wife.

"In the lobby downstairs," Casey admitted. "Found a gun on him. There it is... And he made me bones of what he'd come for—was layin' for his wife to kill her for two-timin' him with Borden."

Ruth gratefully but silently slipped into a chair behind the uniformed policeman had drawn to the table for her and raised compassionate blue eyes to Rita's devastated face. For a moment she thought the dancer was going to faint, but slowly a quivering hand found its customary place on a slim hip and the supple body regained a pathetic tatter of its old nonchalant insolence.

"Well"—Rita shrugged and her voice was hard, bitter, weary, with a terrible undercurrent of amusement—"the joke's on little Rita, all right! Laying for me to kill me, were you?—like you killed me. But she bit back the name that had almost slipped out. "You pretty dancing fool you! Didn't you know I did it—for you!—because you had me so gaga about you?"

"Just a minute, Rita!" McMann clamped a hard hand on the girl's shoulder. "If you're ready to make a confession, it is my duty to place you under arrest and to warn you that anything you say may be used against you."

"Oh, dry up!" the dancer retorted leaned as far as his manacles would permit, and lifted his wife's hands to his lips.

"I go with you now!" he said arrogantly to Detective Casey.

"You're mighty right you will!" McMann agreed grimly. "Take this dancing sheik down to headquarters and book him on a charge of carrying firearms till we know more about his comic opera past!" he added to the detective and the patrolman.

"May I go with him?" Rita begged, springing to her feet as her husband was being led to the door.

"Sure!... If you'll come across with a confession that you robbed Borden's dead body!" McMann retorted, grinning cruelly. "Maybe they'll give you a cell right next to 'Baby'."

"Oh, my Gawd, can't you lay off that?" Rita cried with weary scorn, as she wilted into her chair again.

"Please, Mr. McMann," Ruth dared suggest, in the painful silence that fell upon the group remaining after Ramon Romero had been taken away. "It's way after four, and the cleaning women are on duty by now. You're going to have Letty Miller in for further questioning, aren't you?"

"Letty Miller?" McMann gave her an harassed, puzzled look.

"Don't you remember?—she's the woman who cleans Jack's offices, and the one who admitted Mr. Borden Friday night with her pass-key." Ruth explained meekly.

"Oh, yes!" the detective agreed wearily. "You had some fantastic theory about the scrubwoman's having left Hayward's door unlocked Saturday afternoon, so that anyone might have walked in and used his phone and his gun. Won't do any harm to ask her, I suppose. And I might as well check Martha Manning's story about having been here Friday night. If the scrubwoman says she was still working in this corridor, and didn't see or hear anything of the Manning woman... Get her for me, won't you, Birdwell? I'll stay out here and answer the phone if it rings."

The detective sergeant had to make good that promise less than a minute after the door had closed upon his departing subordinate. He strode to Benny's desk, lifted the receiver and growled into the mouthpiece: "Hello! McMann speaking."

"Who? Oh, Carlson!... What? Lost her? Well, I'll be—What the hell do you think I had you shadowing her for?... How's that?"

Ruth, listening intently to the one-sided conversation, saw a thundercloud settle on the detective sergeant's face. After a long pause, in which Carlson was evidently talking fast to put himself right with his chief, McMann growled disgustedly: "Well, find her! D'you hear? And don't come back till you do!"

He hung up the receiver and relayed the news to Ruth Lester, his voice harsh with disgust and anger: "That was Carlson—the blunkety-blunk fool of a detective I detailed to keep an eye on the Manning woman. And now he calls up to whine a long alibi as to how he 'lost' her. Says he followed her to the door of the ladies' rest room of a department store at a quarter to four, and she gave him the slip somehow, though there's only one door. He got suspicious when she'd been in there 20 minutes, and sent the maid in charge to look for her. Not a trace of the woman, though he's had every female in the rest room paraded before him—Well, Birdwell!" he snapped, as his assistant opened the door.

"The Miller woman will be here in a minute, sir. I found her in—"

"All right!" McMann interrupted impatiently, as he flung himself into a chair opposite Ruth and beside Rita Dubois, at the big table in the center of the outer office. "I've got to think," he muttered, and proceeded to do so, in frowning silence.

Ruth, whose chair faced the open door between the outer office and Borden's private office, so that she had an oblique view of the all-important airshaft window beneath which she had discovered Mary Borden's body cold in death and through which McMann obstinately believed that Jack Hayward had shot the promoter, sat silent, too, but with a tiny smile tugging at the corners of her lovely mouth.

As the silence continued unbroken, she saw the black pigeon alight upon the sill of the open window, then, made bold by the absence of human beings in the private office and the utter silence of those in the outer room, the bird which Ruth, in a bitter moment had christened "Nemesis," fluttered to the floor.

The girl shivered involuntarily as she saw the black pigeon pecking at bread crumbs spilled upon the very spot where Harry Borden's life blood had left its dark stain.

She was glad when the door opened and the slight sound startled the black pigeon into flight, upward and out of the open window. But the next moment her own blood turned to ice in her veins.

For from just behind Ruth's chair came a shrill Banshee wail of sheer terror, rising, rising, breaking at last on a note of supreme horror, as a fainting body fell heavily to the floor.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S AID GOES TO BOSTON
Madison—(AP)—An assistant attorney general, J. E. Messerschmidt, will go to Boston to cross-examine witnesses in the Rexall Drug Stores attempt to obtain more than $3,000 damages from the state for calling the firm's free doll Christmas coupon sale plan illegal.

The dairy and food department, which administers the anti-trading stamp law, notified the three or four stores in Wisconsin that offered the dolls on a "voting" coupon plan that the plan was considered illegal. The stores in federal court, obtained an injunction against the department to prevent it from stopping the doll disposals.

Then the Rexall firm sought leave to bring action for "a sum greatly in excess of $3,000" damages it said were done by the department opinion. The federal court here instructed the attorneys for the drug

Insurance Rate Reduction for Good Drivers
Oldest and Largest Casualty Company Introduces New Plan

Owners of private passenger automobiles here in Appleton and vicinity, whose cars have not been involved in accidents and who have not within the last two years been convicted of any major violations of the motor vehicle laws can obtain a 10 per cent reduction in the cost of their automobile public liability and property damage insurance, by having Geo. Beckley write their insurance with The Travelers, of Hartford, Conn., the largest multiple-line insurance organization in the world.

The new plan of The Travelers, Mr. Geo. Beckley says, applies to car owners, whether previously insured or not, who can comply with the qualifications. Car owners who have taken out insurance with The Travelers since March 25, will be able to obtain the 10 per cent reduction by securing a premium credit endorsement containing the required declarations over his signature.

The rate reduction applies to private passenger automobiles, used either for pleasure or business purposes.

Mr. Geo. Beckley predicts that many car owners here in Appleton and vicinity will be quick to take advantage of this new plan, as well as the recently announced installment payment plan. He will be glad to explain the details of either plan, and to take care of automobile owners who wish to place their insurance with the company with a country-wide claim service, and 51 per cent more automobile insurance than any other company. Mr. Messerschmidt therefore goes to the east to contest the claim that the company was damaged. He will probably cross-examine company officials on their statements from the firm's sales records.

Coed Scrapes Steam To Help Pay School Costs

Corvallis, Ore.—(P)—Scraping out steam boilers may not be the ideal work for a woman, but Ruth Steele of Portland has proved that a girl can scrape them just as well as any man.

That, in connection with dusting and sweeping, is the way she worked her way through high school. That is the way she earned her expenses for the first two years at Oregon state college, and that is the way she probably will earn her expenses next year.

Five years ago, when Ruth was a sophomore in high school, she decided she did not want to take care of children any more. She couldn't do office work. So when someone was needed to help with the dusting at high school she volunteered.

Dusting was not all. She swept and scrubbed floors, she washed windows and doors, tended furnaces and fixed motors and scraped boilers and tubes. In fact, she did everything that the manager could find for her to do.

The manager of janitors was getting tired of squeezing into the steam boilers through manholes that were too small, but steam boilers must be scraped and oiled, so Ruth took over the job.

It took her nine hours the first time she scraped the two boilers but when she finished the job was hers permanently. That was four years ago and she has been scraping boilers ever since. Sometimes she works over the weekend, and always goes to Portland during the Christmas vacation and washes windows and scrapes the boilers.

At first she wore a bathing suit but later adopted her brother's overalls, which proved unsatisfactory. The manager solved clothing problem by offering the suit he had worn, a garment resembling a diver's outfit, and with the aid of numerous tucks and safety pins it was made to fit. She has since worn this costume.

CHILDREN HAVE NOTHING ON THE FAMED MONKEYS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Dorothy doesn't play with toys," complained her mother. "You remember how we played, don't you, Dot? We were forever hunting up patches and dressing dolls. Why, if we had one of those little sewing machines that I gave Dorothy for her birthday, I believe we'd have gone mad with joy."

"Yet I doubt if she's touched it after she'd had it three days. And even then I think I played with it more than she did. I got out mending it neglected for weeks, and did nearly all of it. It was more fun than my electric!"

"SEWING? WELL, NO!"

"You never use it, do you? I believe I never saw it."

"It's a beauty. Oh yes, you did. It's the mahogany console I keep at the foot of my bed, but I hate sewing now. I hardly ever open it."

"Well, what other toys doesn't our august niece approve of?" asked Dot.

"Let me see. I bought her a complete kitchen set one day I wish you could see the stove. Come on up and I'll show it to you. Mind you, it's got electric burners! And there are all sorts of kettles and sauce pans and frying pans for it—even a roaster, but she never touches it. Now, when we were little you know very well we'd have adored it, so, we'd have taken the whole works to bed with us. I can't understand that child—when we were always so domestic."

"What else?"

"STRANGE CHILD"

"Um! Why—well, just everything. She scorned the sight of the laundry set Mother sent her. Washbasins, wringer, boiler, washboard, clothes-horse, washing basket, clothespins and line—most complete outfit you ever saw. I don't think she even looked at the whole ensemble once. I'll bet if I'd buy her one of those miniature electric washers she wouldn't look at it, either. Some child!"

"What does she like?"

"Well—she has one doll that has a whole wardrobe of clothes. She dresses her to go shopping and dresses her for golf and for tennis and for calling and balls. She has the dolls give bridge parties and has them call in the toy Rolls Royce and take each other riding. It's simply killing. How she learned the lingo, I don't know. You just ought to hear her."

"HO! IMITATORS, EH?"

"Say, sister dear, I don't know a thing about kids, but it seems to me I've heard that when they're four or five they are perfect monkeys to imitate. How can you expect her to make doll dresses, when you buy every rag that comes into your house? How can you think she's going to love cooking when you never go near the kitchen?"

"She does what she sees you do. That's the way all children play."

But Dorothy's mother just stared.

"I believe," she nodded finally, "that you just said something. And we blame the children."

Cherry's prophecy came true. She did cast a pebble into the beautiful tranquility of the Hathaway breakfast table. Bob, feeling the sanctity of his home threatened by the presence—possibly for a long time—of this most disturbing element, scowled at his sister-in-law in answer to her gay greeting.

"Poor Bob," Cherry crooned, with mock sympathy, as she bent over her sister's husband and rumbled his chestnut hair. "How he does loathe his adoring little sister. And she's so crazy about him, too! Will you strike me if I kiss you, darling?" she teased, as she made good her threat.

"You need a beating all right," Bob growled, slightly mollified in spite of himself and ashamed of his capitulation to Cherry's charm. "I suppose you'd die of boredom if you weren't kicking up some fuss or other all the time. When are you going to admit you're grown up, settle down and behave yourself?"

"Never!" Cherry retorted gaily. "When a plump, juicy pear—the others had prunes—had been placed before Cherry and Beulah had retired, with pleased grins for Cherry's extravagant thanks, Bob brutally asked, in spite of Faith's pleading eyes: 'When are you going home, Cherry?'"

"Darling, your hospitality touches me deeply," Cherry laughed. "Thanks with all my heart for your tactful invitation to make this my home as long as my broken heart requires sanctuary. Got that out of a book. Isn't it swell? . . . By the way, Crystal is looking at me like a big-eyed little girl, who wonders what the bad, bad lady is talking about. Doesn't she know the horrid truth—that I've left my husband, and that I'll probably apply for a divorce on the grounds of 'cruel and inhuman treatment'?"

"She knows nothing of the sort because it isn't true," Faith answered with unusual spirit. "You know I'm glad to have you make me a visit, Cherry, but Bob is right. You have no right to endanger a really happy marriage by behaving like a spoiled child."

Cherry's topaz eyes flamed with sudden anger. "So you both want to know when I'm going home, do you? Well, I'll tell you I'm going home when Nils Jonson comes for me, and not one minute before. I'm not going to be any man's doormat, and that's—final!"

Bob's face flushed darkly with anger. "And Nils Jonson isn't going to make himself a doormat for any woman, Cherry. You've got sense enough to know that, even if you do act like a fool! My advice to you is to go home today, while the going's good. Otherwise you may not find any 'Welcome' sign on the doormat—if that's what you think Nils Jonson is."

"You're just trying to frighten me!" Cherry shrieked, shaking her fruit knife in her brother-in-law's face. "Faith's been spilling everything I told her! She's told you I'm scared. . . . Well, I am, if it does you any good to know. Bob Hathaway! I'm scared, but I've still got some pride left, and I'm not going to crawl home and beg Nils to take me back!"

When Cherry had fled the room in a storm of tears, Crystal sat very still, slowly concocting a scheme which would break the deadlock.

RHUBARB HINTS OF SOME FRESH "PIE TIMBER"

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

To many housewives rhubarb early in the spring merely means some fresh "pie timber" at a time when her supply is limited. However, rhubarb is of more value than just pie filling.

Some people object to rhubarb on account of its great acidity. Its leaves do contain some oxalic acid which is a highly poisonous material. They should not be used in any way. The stems contain much less acid than the leaves and after cooking the acid content is nil.

RHUBARB BETTY

Two cups cut rhubarb, 1-2 cup raisins, 4 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 3-4 cup bread crumbs.

Put half the crumbs into a well buttered baking dish. Add rhubarb and raisins. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with bits of butter. Cover with remaining crumbs and dot with butter. Cover baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Remove cover to brown top. Serve warm from baking dish.

The greatest virtue of rhubarb lies in its tonic effect. It comes to us at a time of faded appetites and its tartness stimulates the desire for other foods. Found in it is some phosphorus, that constituent necessary for strong teeth and sound bones, and vitamin C.

Shaved rhubarb is desirable for breakfast in place of orange juice. Care should be taken not to overcook it, for vitamin C disappears if subjected to too great heat for too long a length of time. Vitamin C is the same one found in orange juice and tomato juice and uncooked cabbage and lettuce and the other green and yellow vegetables.

When rhubarb is combined with other materials greater food value is obtained since these can be chosen to make up its lack. For instance many cooks add raisins to stewed or baked rhubarb. This adds iron to the dish and increases its efficiency.

The person on a reducing diet will find rhubarb to her liking if too much sugar is not used for sweetening. She will of course not choose any rhubarb dish indiscriminately but select a rhubarb jelly whip, ice or plain stewed rhubarb.

Princess Lines

THE STYLE sketched suggests princess lines with novel seaming at either side of center waistline at back, with inverted plaits below the waistline. Intricate diagonal lines at front reveal the modern trend, even to inset pockets with flap closing. The plaited section at front is stitched part way and then released to sway in motion. It is especially smart in sheer tweed, printed silk crepe, canton-faille crepe, wool crepe, jersey in angora weave, and crepe marocain. Printed pique is effective for summer, for Design No. 2840 worn with plain pique coat.

THE PATTERN is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. It contains a Picture Chart, a new quick method of showing how every part is joined to enable the beginner to make it in an unbelievably short time, and will also prove of great interest to a woman who makes all her clothes to obtain perfect fit.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

THE STORY OF THE HOUR—"RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL"

Against a background as realistically New York as an airplane photograph of Manhattan Island, Huck Connor, Harold Judson and Stephen Armitage each fought for one of the three things that men have always fought for—Life, Love and Money.

Circumstances tossed these three widely different types together. Huck Connor, left above, was a desperate racketeer. Harold Judson, center, was the pampered, weak-willed son of the owner of the fashionable Judson Hotel. Stephen Armitage, right, was a young automobile salesman.

How Judson and Armitage fell victim to Huck the racketeer makes a thrilling story of New York life. As modern as today's newspaper. Meet these characters, and Pamela Judson and Mildred Lawrence in "Rich Girl—Poor Girl," Ruth Dewey Groves' newest serial story hit.

Nearest Star 4 1-3 Years Away At Speed Of Light

BY ROBERT H. BAKER

(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

Urbana, Ill.—(P)—If it were possible to travel through space as fast as a ray of light travels, we could reach the moon in 1.3 seconds. If the journey were continued at this high speed without a stop anywhere, we would pass by the nearest star in four and one-third years.

April is as good a month as any for beginning the trip. Suppose we take off some morning toward the south. The daylight will not interfere, for in an instant we shall be above the atmosphere, where the stars are always visible.

After four hours the most remote planet, Neptune, is passed; but for the first four or five days we still are in the outskirts of the solar system. Out here the great comets spend most of their time cruising leisurely far from the sun.

The nearest star is called Proxima. Viewed from the earth it is so dim that a telescope is needed in order to see it. Not far beyond this star is Alpha Centauri, which, until recently, was thought to be the nearest star. As we approach Alpha Centauri, it becomes more and more like the sun, while the sun far behind us appears as a bright star and the planets have shrunk to invisibility.

Continuing the journey we pass by a star every three or four years. Occasionally we plunge through an enormous cloud of dark cosmic stuff. These cosmic clouds are the cause of the great rifts and "local suckers" in the Milky way; they hide almost completely from the earth the view of the center of our stellar system.

Finally, as we emerge from one of these clouds, we can see far ahead this great aggregation of possibly as many as 60,000 million stars, which forms the hub of the stellar system. It will take up 60,000 years in all to reach the center.

Another jump of 100,000 years takes us to the far edge of our own stellar system. A million years will have elapsed by the time we have reached the next system of stars—the nearest spiral nebula. Then the trip across the universe will be well started. We have now traveled with the speed of light, only as far as we can see from the earth with the naked eye.

The direct means of measuring the distances of the stars is to observe with the telescope the slight shifting of nearer stars against the background of the more distant ones, as the earth makes its annual circuit of the sun. The nearer the star, the greater its apparent shift. But the shift is always very small.

If we represent the earth's great orbit by the circumference of a period on this page, the nearest star on this scale is 75 yards away. The astronomer's problem is to measure the difference in the star's displacement when the middle of the telescope is moved from one edge of this little disc to the other. This is the exact case.

The distances of 2,000 of the nearest stars are known as the result of this procedure. But for the billions of stars that lie beyond the method fails. In less direct ways, however, astronomers are succeeding in sounding the depths of the universe.

TOWNSALDERMEN CLASH OVER PURCHASE OF TRUCK FOR CITY

South and North Side Representatives Lock Horns in Controversy

Kaukauna—R. J. Wilson company of Appleton was awarded the contract for laying sewers on the Island, Jefferson and North side of the city. The council meeting on Friday evening in the council chambers of the municipal building. Nine bids were received.

After much controversy it was decided by a five to four vote to buy an International truck for the south road district. An allowance of $550 will be allowed for the old truck by the Hennes Auto company whose bid for furnishing the car for $2,340 was accepted. The four aldermen who voted against it are Walter Cooper, T. Linstrom, G. L. Smith and Bernard Faust.

Alderman Cooper said he believed that a Graham truck should be bought as the two trucks of that make have given satisfactory service to the city. He said that a Graham truck was better in his opinion and he could not vote against his convictions. Alderman Linstrom said that nothing was said in the advertising for bids about an allowance to be made on the old truck and he believed that the bidders should have a chance to take this into consideration. Alderman Faust and Alderman Smith agreed with Mr. Linstrom.

Alderman H. Weitenbach said that the council had a right to reject all or any bids. All the aldermen on the south road district favored buying an International truck. He said that the council did not tell those of the north road district what kind to buy.

ALDERMEN IN CLASH
Alderman E. Landreman disliked the actions of the aldermen of the north side who voted against buying the truck and said that he would not give his support to any proposition that would be made in the future by them. He said he did not oppose purchase of a car for the north road district a short time ago, but he did not like the action of the aldermen of the north side who voted against buying the truck and said that he would not give his support to any proposition that would be made in the future by them. He said he did not oppose purchase of a car for the north road district a short time ago, but he did not like the action of the aldermen of the north side who voted against buying the truck and said that he would not give his support to any proposition that would be made in the future by them.

Mayor W. C. Sullivan intervened by saying that both parties were wrong in clashing, and said he was distressed that aldermen should do so because it was only a matter of dollars. He said that there was no north or south side, only one city; and that the controversy should stop. He said that all the trucks were good but the business had to be distributed. He also said that he did not approve of the council meeting as a committee of the whole on such propositions, preferring that the business be conducted in the usual manner.

The bids of the Kaukauna banks for handling the city funds were held over until the next meeting. This was done so an investigation could be made of how the funds should be deposited in order to get the maximum amount of interest.

ASK FOR MORE PAY
The bills of the election boards were presented and they asked for $15. After much discussion pro and con only $7.50 was allowed. Alderman Cooper held that anyone on the election board earns more than $7.50. The city ordinance was looked up and it stated that the sum of $7.50 should be paid for each day.

Alderman Cooper, Smith, and Linstrom favored the 515 wage because of the number of hours worked. Alderman Weitenbach said that the work was worth no more, and Alderman Landreman agreed with him.

The bus ordinance was adopted unanimously after explanation of several of the sections were made by Joseph LeFevre, city attorney. Alderman Weitenbach said he did not favor including the license in the application and said that the city ought to have the power to designate what types of buses should be operated in the city. Attorney LeFevre said that the ordinance was only a trial one and would only be for one year. The matter of bus types would come under the head of service and is handled by the Wisconsin railroad commission. The schedule also is controlled by the commission he said.

The ordinance on keeping dogs confined was held over until the next meeting so an amendment could be made to it. It will not give the police the right to kill a dog without first impounding him and trying to find his owner. The suggestion was made by Alderman Weitenbach.

A notice of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company was read which stated that the Inter-City bus company is now controlled by the Wisconsin Michigan Power company and will be operated under its control. A report of the ton miles for the buses will be made at the end of every month for the bus trips in the city, the notice read.

Neenah Eliminated From Tournament Play Friday

RED ROCKETS ARE DOWNED, 22 TO 21 BY COLUMBUS FIVE

Take 8 to 0 Lead in First Quarter but Lose in Fourth Period

MADISON—Neenah high school lost its quest for honors in the Wisconsin interscholastic basketball tournament here Friday when the Red Rockets lost a one point decision to Columbus, 22 and 21.

Rushing after their points soon after the opening whistle the Red Rockets piled up an 8 to 0 lead that carried well into the second quarter. Columbus awoke to the occasion about this time, however, and rattled up 13 points while Neenah was adding three. Columbus led at the half way mark 13 and 11.

Neenah again took the lead in the third quarter but saw the advantage and the game fade in the fourth period. Columbus hit the hoop on almost every freethrow, many of the points coming by the rail.

BY STANLEY E. KALISH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Madison—(P)—The last act of the Wisconsin basketball drama will be enacted in the state university's little red armory here Saturday night as troupes from industrial Kenosha and lumberland Wausau take the curtain call of the twenty-sixth annual tournament. The victor will win its first state title in history.

As anti-climaxes to the 27-act Wisconsin interscholastic play, Columbus and Platteville will fight for the consolation championship, while Beloit, Superior central, Menomonee or Oconto will receive the third-place tournament award.

Through four days of basketball, in a gymnasium made oppressive by stifling summer heat, Wausau, a community of 15,000 persons nestled on the edge of Wisconsin's northern forests, and Kenosha, the second largest city in the commonwealth, a melting pot of all nationalities, have survived tournament play. Indications are that the final game will be as torrid as the fittest cooker playing court.

Kenosha, a team composed of two Poles, two Americans, a Swede and Englishman and two Germans, won its right to the final by easily downing Menomonee, 25 to 17, in a semi-final game Friday night. The lake shore Red Devils used a substitute forward with a large part of the game and conserved the energy of Klueber, Hammond and Monteen, three stars for Saturday night's finals.

Fighting an uphill battle, which did not see the victory tide turn its way until the last five minutes, Wausau overcame a six-point Oconto advantage to win entry to the state finals.

Coach Caddy Ewer's five appeared sluggish in the contest and did not snap from lethargy until the final period when it eked out a 17 to 15 victory.

The team, composed largely of Frenchmen and Germans, showed strong defensive power, but its scoring attack lacked both precision and power.

In third place competition, Beloit will oppose Superior Central in a semi-final game. Beloit easily downed Ladysmith, 30 to 20, while Superior took Wisconsin High of Madison into camp, 28 to 21. The winner of this contest will oppose the winner of a game between Oconto and Menomonee who lost in championship semi-final play Friday night, for the third-place title Saturday.

BABE RUTH WALLOPS HIS FIRST HOME RUN

Dallas, Tex.—(P)—It's well with the New York Yankees again for Babe Ruth finally has come through with his first home run of the 1929 season. The Babe came to bat in the eighth inning of Friday's game with the Dallas Stars with the score tied at 11-11. He caught hold of one of Dick Schuman's left-handed curves and lifted it up over the right field bleachers. That blow not only gave the Babe his first homer of the campaign but won a hectic ball game for the Yankees, 12-11.

UMPIRE DIES AFTER BUS IS WRECKED

Washington, D. C.—Thomas Crooke of Washington, former professional baseball player and umpire, died Friday of injuries received Thursday night in the wreck near Queen, Va., of a bus which carried the Cornell baseball team to Washington.

None of the players was severely injured but the trainer, Frank Sheehan, 50, of Ithaca, N. Y., had several ribs and his left arm broken and may have a fractured skull.

FLYING COP LANDS IN PYLE'S MARATHON

Roundy Talks About Neenah

"Roundy" Coughlin, the bard of Madison in his glory these days telling the folks what he thinks about the various high school basketball teams. Here's Roundy's contribution to the English language as he discusses Neenah high school five.

"Neenah fought till the last, and it was a crime to see Big John Schneller go down to defeat no doubt robbed him of making first all state team. Schneller played a whale of a game he scored 12 points of the 24. Schneller is no doubt best varsity stuff to play in this gym big and strong and lots of fight and a bear under the basket, there is a fellow who will bring quite a lot of honors to Neenah in college sports before he is done, he has the stuff. Gaertner don't seem to be half the player he was last year he ran them ragged last year for his size was easy best in the tournament. Stacker was away off yesterday for Neenah. Johnson and Ehlers are fine guards but were not what they can be in that game yesterday."

"Neenah knocked off Nekosha in a thriller that was a game to see. Gaertner the little Neenah forward hit his stride yesterday and played a sensational game he was a whizz yesterday and his stuff about won that game, it was too hot for big John Schneller but the big boy came through with two baskets to help win an air tight game and he played a sweet game on defense. Grogan for Neenah played a bear of a game when sent in his fight alone won that game and he fitted in team play in great shape."

HENRY L. FARRELL

FEED HIM, THAT'S ALL
WIEN Frank Flounoy was making matches for Tex Rickard in the old Garden in New York. He received a telephone call from Jimmy Dougherty, the celebrated Baron of Liverpool, Pa. Dougherty, among other things, that he does for his own amusement, handles a string of boxers including George Godfrey, colored and considerable of a heavyweight fighter.

"Frank, do me a favor, will you?" Dougherty said over the phone. "I'm taking a couple of my little fellows to the coast and I can't afford to take the match and Godfrey. Get him some kind of a match. I don't care so much about the dough. Just get him enough to pay his grocery bills until I get back."

—HE AIN'T NO MAN

Within a few days Godfrey reported to Flounoy. "Here I am ready to go," was his simple and direct way of wishing himself upon the matchmaker.

"Mr. Jimmy, says you are getting me a tough match and that I got to train." I prompted him. I would do plenty of training."

Flounoy tried to match him with some of the New York colored boys but they wouldn't even listen to him. "That Godfrey ain't no man," they said. "He's a big animal."

So Flounoy had to send out to Ohio to take the match and Godfrey Jackson. Tut took the match and Flounoy put Godfrey in training. He didn't need to be in such swell shape for Jackson, but Flounoy figured it was up to him to keep Gage's grocery bill down.

NO RENNIN; JUST WALKING
Godfrey had been around about ten days and had been drawing ten dollars a day for room and rations when Flounoy asked him if he was doing road work.

"Tas, suh, Mr. Frank," he answered.

"Where?" Flounoy wanted to know.

"In the park, Central Park, Mr. Frank," he replied.

"Tas, suh, Mr. Frank," he replied. "I've been around the reservoir every morning."

"How many times do you run around the reservoir, George?"

"I didn't say nothing about running, Mr. Frank. I walks around the old reservoir twice every morning before I eat. And it makes me eat plenty."

SIO WORTH OF LUCK
When Godfrey is training or fighting he always wears an elastic bandage around his knee and it has given the impression to the customers that he has a bad leg.

"That's not so," Flounoy said during a chat in Miami Beach. "That fellow is as sound and as solid as a piano. And with it he is the most superstitious negro I ever have met."

"That bandage around his knee is not a brace. It is used to hide a little sack of powder that he got from a voodoo doctor. He paid ten bucks for it. I'm sure it is nothing but black pepper, but the doctor told George if he carried the powder around under his knee he never would have bad luck and he won't step into the ring unless he puts the bag under the bandage."

Tommy Thevenow, Phillies' Shortstop, Bids For Fame As The Original Hardluck Kid

BY BOB MATHERNE

IF there is such a thing as a jinx that pursues certain luckless ones, it seems that Tommy Thevenow, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, is one of those unfortunate.

Thevenow has been seriously injured in an automobile wreck in Florida.

With another Philadelphia player, and in a rented car, Thevenow was going from Lakeland to Winter Haven, a distance of 12 miles, when the accident happened. In attempting to avoid a passing machine their car swerved into a ditch. Both players were thrown from the car and Thevenow suffered serious injuries.

Thevenow, in all probability, won't be able to play with the Philadelphia club this season.

This is unfortunate, not only for Thevenow but also for the hopes that the Phillies had of being a team of some importance in the National League race this season.

The Phillies have earned a great deal of praise from the experts by their improved play this spring and no little of the nice things said can be attributed to the work that Thevenow was doing.

His presence seemed to have put plenty of life in the infield.

"I've got a good man at shortstop," Manager Shotton told the experts. "He fields well and throws nicely and he is able to hit some what more than a lot of shortstops. Thevenow is doing wonders for this infield."

Thevenow has had more than his share of bad luck in his major league career of four years. This would have been his fifth. His four previous years were spent with the St. Louis Cards.

Never a very great hitter, but a good man in the pinch, Thevenow was the batting hero of the 1926 world series between the Yankees and Cards. He batted .417 in the series, being the only man on either team to hit above the .400 mark.

Late in reaching a salary agreement with the Cards the next spring, Thevenow didn't suffer from a late arrival in the training camp. On the contrary, he was sensation with his bat.

But the moment the season got under way Thevenow's bat was completely silenced. The jinx had him. In his first 40 games he drove in exactly two runs across the plate.

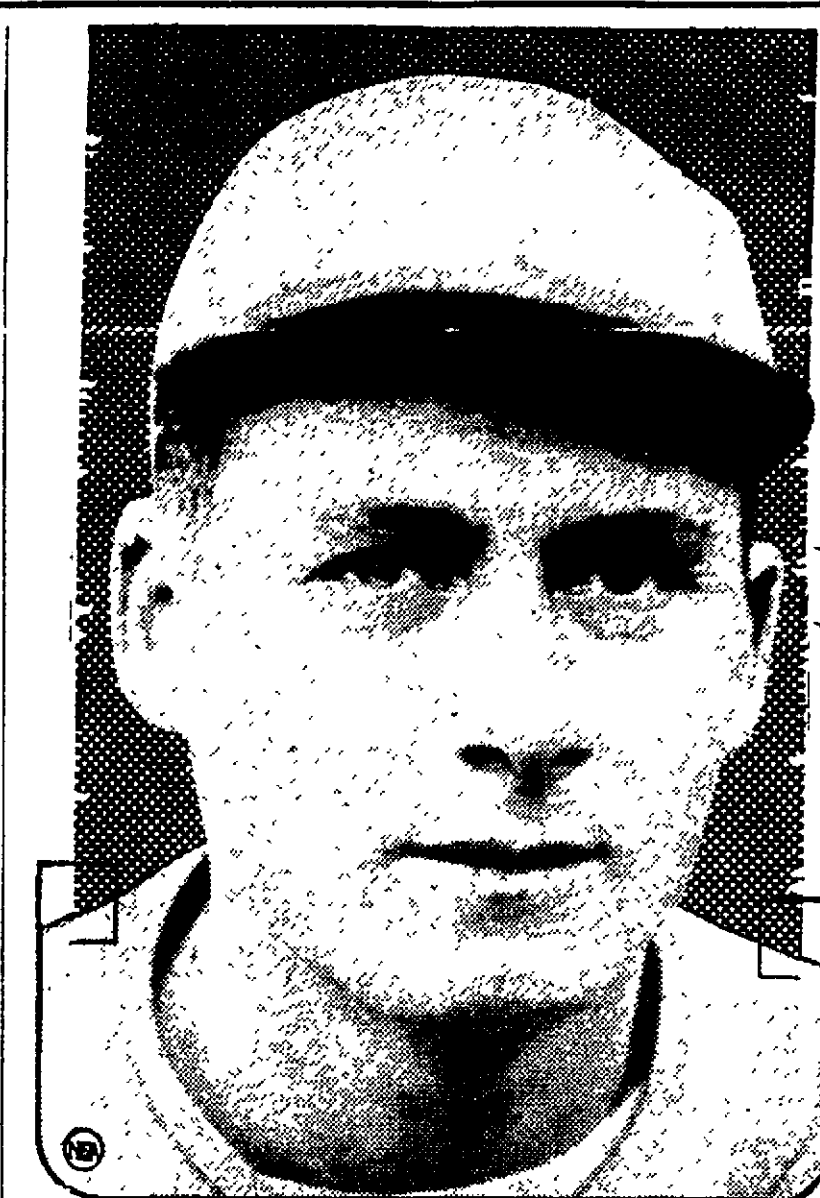

Batting slumps are hard to explain. They come unexpectedly and they go unexpectedly. That was Thevenow's case. But no sooner had he gotten over the batting slump before another jolt came his way.

He suffered a serious leg injury. And, to make it brief, the result was that the record book shows he played in only 55 games for the Cardinals in 1927.

He worked in only 69 games for the Cards last season. His leg again troubled him.

The Cards traded him to the Philadelphia Phillies during the winter months and Thevenow joined his new club with the thought that perhaps he would be able to show the Cards had made a bad deal. And from all the nice things that have been said of him this spring it does seem as if he was on the way to bring the Thevenow of old.

And then this accident—just another tough blow for a game little fellow and a popular fellow, to have to take.

VIKES WILL SEND MEN TO U. W. MEET

Badger Colleges Enter Squads to Compete With University

Lawrence college will enter about a dozen of her best track men in the university of Wisconsin-Wisconsin college meet which will be held at Camp Randall, April 20, according to A. C. Denney director of athletics and track coach.

The meet is being arranged by Badger authorities who wish to give members of the Cardinal track team a fling at active competition on a large scale. Formerly they have had to contend with sending a few men to the various early season meets and leave the remainder of the squad idle or competing among themselves. The university college meet will give all members of the squad a chance to show their stuff under fire.

Lawrence, Beloit, Ripon, Carroll and Marquette all will send men to compete in the meet and will stack their totals against those the Cardinal runs up. The tourney, coming before most of the colleges start active competition gives the best men from each of the schools a little pre-season competition.

The Lawrence-Stevens Point normal meet scheduled for April 27 has been called off according to Coach Denney because all athletic activity at the Point is at a standstill this spring. The date of the meet was April 27.

PADDY HARMON PLANS AMBITIOUS PROGRAM
Chicago—(P)—Paddy Harmon is attempting to arrange several outdoor boxing matches to keep the boxing industry and his new Chicago stadium busy this summer.

Andre Routis, Tony Canzoneri, Ray Noller, Ted Morgan, Honeyboy Finnegan, Harry Blittman, Fidel Labarba and Earl Nastro are some of the leading boxers he hopes to sign up for his summer program.

Chicago—(P)—Five Wisconsin teams were enthroned in the upper ten of the five-man event standings in the American Bowling Congress tournament Saturday. The new member, giving the Badgers just half of the coveted lead positions, was the Hendy's Recreation squad from Menasha, which landed in seventh place Friday night with a total of 3,008.

Ed Judy, Chicago star, furnished the thrills Friday when he took the singles lead away from Jeff Davis and E. Krems and also placed second in the all events division.

The standings:
FIVE-MAN
Hub Recreation, Joliet, Ill., 3,063.
Klinger Buleks, Watertown, 3,041.
Edwell, Chicago, 3,030.
Foster Shoes, Cincinnati, 3,019.
Garden No. 2, Detroit, 3,018.
Milwaukee Journals, Milwaukee, 3,015.
Hendy's Recreation, Menasha, 3,008.
Maynard Steels, Milwaukee, 3,006.
Mooney's Cafe, Milwaukee, 3,001.
Geo. Springguths, Chicago, 2,998.

Wichita Falls, Tex.—(P)—Grady Adkins is the first White Sox pitcher to travel the full nine inning route this season. Adkins went the distance against the Wichita Falls Spudders Friday and although he was nipped for 11 hits, the White Sox won 5 to 7.

Houston, Tex.—(P)—Charlie Root, who slumped badly in 1928, has pleased Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs with his spring form this year. Root allowed but four hits in seven innings Friday and the Cubs defeated Houston for the second straight time, 5 to 3.

Kansas City—(P)—In their third extra inning game in as many days, the St. Louis Browns bowed to Kansas City Friday, 3 to 2. The Browns wasted seven hits, five of them doubles, in their 11th inning effort.

Dallas, Tex.—(P)—Paul Waner will join the Pirates Friday, so Donie Redmond is expected to be in his lineup for the opening of the National league race. George Grantham probably will get the call for the third position in the outfield, he said, and if Pie Traynor's ailing hip does not permit him to work regularly, Riconda will be used as a substitute. Dick Bartell will become the regular second baseman.

Washington—(P)—Manager Walter Johnson has served notice on other clubs in the American league that when Lloyd Brown, a young south-paw, goes to the mound for Washington, hits will be infrequent and runs even fewer. Sam Brown was with the club all of last year and won only four ball games, but Man-

Intersectional Games Soon A Common Thing

BY LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK—Stanford liked her eastern trip so well last fall that she is coming again—in 1931—Nov. 28, to be exact—when she will display her wing back offense and other offensive features at the Harvard stadium in Cambridge.

But her opponent will not be Harvard. Dartmouth will be host. The Green is located in a small town in New Hampshire, Hanover, and while it is a rarely beautiful place it is too remote to admit of any great crowds attending a football game there while at the same time the field is not geared for crowds of from 40 to 60 thousand such as a game of this character would be certain to draw.

So Harvard very graciously, in view of the fact that the stadium is available for more Dartmouth alumni than any eastern city, has agreed to lease it to the New Hampshire college for that day.

Stanford's journey to New England will be preceded by a visit of Dartmouth to Palo Alto next year. And in the arrangement may be noted further steps in home-and-home meetings of Atlantic and Pacific coast teams which was inaugurated two years ago by Southern California and Notre Dame.

Pennsylvania will play host to California next October and Carnegie Tech is going to Los Angeles and West Point is going to Palo Alto next fall. So begins a condition which within a short time will see transcontinental games taken as a matter of course. The Harvard stadium with its capacity of 55,000 will not begin to hold all the football lovers who will want to see this game, but, on the other hand, it is adequate to take care of Dartmouth alumni provided reasonable care is exercised in apportioning allotments among over-hungry grads.

Yale is still hunting for a line coach. The Eli line play last year gave every evidence that the young men engaged in coaching the forwards were too close to the students, having been students themselves but a year or two formerly. Either that or the ancient art of Yale line play, a system which altered the whole complexion of football throughout the country when Yale men spread it broadcast, has been lost among the younger generation.

Right in New York there is a Yale man, who, no doubt, could fill the bill very acceptably at New Haven. He is Dr. Bridges, a very able technician and deeply versed in Yale line tradition. But there are very different schools of thought at New Haven—call them factions, if you will—so there is little chance of any number of the ancient regime being called in.

NAME NEW DIRECTOR AT BELOIT COLLEGE
Beloit—(P)—Robert K. Jaggard, for the past seven years athletic director of the Community high school at Hinsdale, Ill., has been named director of athletics and assistant professor of physical education at Beloit college. He will fill the vacancy left by Roy Bohler who resigned.

Jaggard announced he will start the spring football practice in about two weeks. He will handle varsity football and basketball, while Fred Schildhauer will remain to direct the track work.

RISKO COMES BACK TO DEFEAT OTTO VON PORAT
Boston, Mass.—Johnny Risko of Cleveland made an impressive comeback last night, whipping Otto Von Porat, Chicago heavyweight, decisively in a ten round bout at the garden. Risko was the aggressor all the way. Von Porat tried hard to land with his devastating left hook but Risko always ducked or sidestepped out of range.

The bout attracted a crowd of 12,000.

VIKINGS POSTPONE SPRING GRID WORK

Football practice at Lawrence college, scheduled to get underway Monday has been postponed another week by Coach Clarence H. Rasmussen. The grid out at Whiting athletic field still is too soft to permit the punishment it will receive by a squad of husky footballers kicking around and digging it up.

Coach Rasmussen isn't worrying much about the extra week's delay because he had most of his gridgers on wrestling and boxing teams and they have been in strict training all winter. Many of Rasmussen's men have filled out considerably during the winter months because of their training and are almost ready for a strenuous game of football now.

How many men will greet the Viking mentor when he issues the call for grid candidates is a question. Many men are taking part in track and won't be able to spend much time learning football fundamentals.

Sports Question Box
Question—Is there a woman's England versus United States contest like the Vightman Cup in lawn tennis and the Walker Cup in golf among men?

Answer—No, but such a contest is now being discussed.

Question—Runner on base, batter is ready to hit, pitcher is on his plate. At this moment a runner who had been put out previously at third base passed behind the umpire who stood behind home plate. He said something to the umpire. The latter turned around and cautioned him to keep quiet. The pitcher saw the umpire turn his head away and made a plain talk which the umpire did not see. The batting team demanded a decision in their favor. The umpire gave it although his back had been turned toward the field.

Answer—The umpire had no right to give a decision upon any play that he did not see.

Question—Do you think Madison Square Garden of New York will hold its lead in the promotion of boxing contests five years from now?

Answer—Yes, New York can draw from a concentrated population of millions of fans and transports swell this figure considerably, and where the big money is the boxer will perform.

Sons Of Two Famous Grid Stars On Wisconsin Squad
THAT sons of famous athletes in midwest universities don't always attend the same school as their fathers, is indicated in a story from Madison that William Heston, son of the famous "Willie" Heston of early football days is at Madison and a member of the university grid squad.

"Willie" Heston was one of the greatest line plungers ever to don a Michigan uniform back in the knock 'em down and drag 'em out days. He weighed about 190 pounds and when he hit something had to give. The old boys at Michigan still recall his famous plunging.

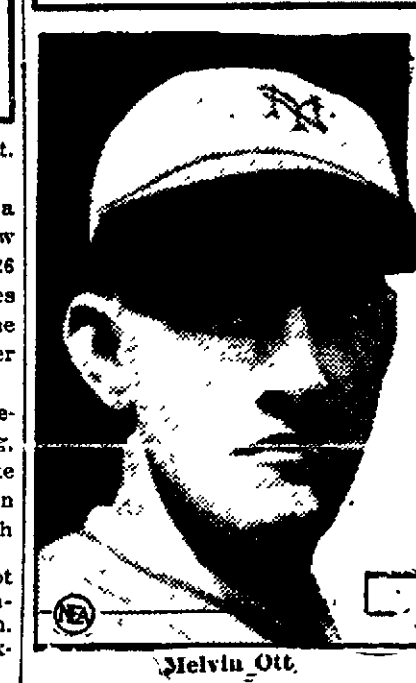

But the pencil pushers at Madison missed a story when they forgot that young Mark Catlin, Appleton, also is at Wisconsin, a candidate for end on the grid squad and is the son of the old Chicago grid star.

The big story is that perhaps next fall Wisconsin grid fans will see young Willie Heston circling around young Catlin's end and then old man time will harken back to the early days when the first Willie Heston came crashing through the first Mark Catlin's end both men stars on their respective teams.

Speaking of Willie Heston, Mark Catlin, Sr., said recently: "He was one of the hardest runners I ever saw. He weighed about 190 pounds and when he hit the line something always had to give."

And if young Heston can play as good as his old man, and young Catlin as good as his—won't the Badgers have a real aggregation in a year or so?

Enthusiastic

Melvin Ott

The New York Giants are enthusiastic over their chances of winning the National League pennant this summer and Melvin Ott, the boy outfield star, is probably the most enthusiastic of the lot. Ott reported to training camp in perfect condition and has been playing a most improved game of ball this spring. It looks like he will be in there every day for McGraw this summer.

Harry Leopold and Joe Muench hope to put baseball back on the sport map in Neenah-Menasha. These two veterans are getting together a lot of young blood from which they hope to build a winner. An improvement can also be looked for in Appleton where Eddie Kotal will be playing manager. The Packer football star is a live wire and it is a good bet that he will have his team hustling if nothing else.

Fond du Lac is counting on a better year. During the 1928 season, Red Sanders broke in a lot of young stars and now they should be just about ready to win the league ball. Two veteran leaders, Marty Lamers and Les Smith will again be in charge at Kim-Little Chute and Kaukauna, respectively. These clubs finished one-two in the pennant hunt last season.

There will be a house cleaning at Green Bay although a number of the 1928 stars will again sparkle on the diamond. Eddie Glick is the playing manager this season and he hopes to develop a winner. The Stars will use the Northeastern Wisconsin fair grounds as their home diamond this season as Bellevue park, the old league grounds, is now being used by a construction concern.

KID CHOCOLATE A POPULAR BOXER
Little Cuban Now in Demand for Bouts With Bantamweights

NEW YORK—Less than a year ago Kid Chocolate was tickled pink to accept $60 for a six-round contest when he arrived from Cuba, unheralded and unknown. The Kid has been such a sensation with promoters and fans alike that he can afford to turn down offers of $7,500 for a 10-round engagement. The yardstick of a boxer's popularity is not measured in terms of money when the fans want to see that boxer in action. This is proven in the offers Chocolate has been receiving since his return from a visit with the home folks.

Jess McMahon, former matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, now identified with the Starlight Amusement Park in this city, means to show the Kid in a 15-round engagement with Busby Graham as his opponent on the twelfth of this month. Jess will try to get the local boxing commission to recognize the bout as a bantamweight championship affair. There is hardly any chance of this. The boxing moguls have learned to their regret that the public will not stand for any rule-made champions and have decided to let the fans decide for themselves. How is this done? By the drawing power of the boxer and the fans consider the best fighter in his class.

Chocolate has been doing his fighting at a weight several pounds above the bantamweight limit and it is questionable if the popular little Negro can pare off the weight and still retain his effectiveness. As Tommy Loughran proved last Thursday evening, a few pounds makes a lot of difference in a fighting man's form.

It would be unfair to label any contest as a bantamweight tussle affair without considering the claims of Kid Francis whose record is every bit as good as either Chocolate Kid's or Graham's.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS SETTLE CAGE SUPREMACY
The Wilson junior high school seventh grade basketball team won the championship of junior high seventh grade teams in the city Wednesday evening when it defeated the Roosevelt seventh at Roosevelt school. At the same time the Wilson ninth lost to the Roosevelt ninth, and the Wilson eighth went down before the Roosevelt eighth.

The Wilson seventh grade team has won two out of three games from the Roosevelt team, and one of the two played with the McKinley seventh.

BASEBALL MOGULS COMPLETE PLANS FOR 1929 SEASON

Marinette Wants to Join League but Oshkosh Is Undecided

MAKE up of the Fox River Valley league will be definitely decided here Sunday at the meeting of club owners. It will either be a six-club circuit, like last year, or the loop will be increased to eight spokes through the addition of Marinette and Oshkosh.

Marinette is all set and anxious to go but the situation in Oshkosh is still a bit uncertain. Several different organizations look with favor on Valley league ball but some difficulties are cropping out regarding the lease at the Winnebago county fair grounds, which is the best baseball park in the Sawdust City.

All the other spokes in the loop are set and ready to go, which is as they should be, because the opening of the season is only a month in the distance.

Harry Leopold and Joe Muench hope to put baseball back on the sport map in Neenah-Menasha. These two veterans are getting together a lot of young blood from which they hope to build a winner. An improvement can also be looked for in Appleton where Eddie Kotal will be playing manager. Plant Annuals Now If You Want July Flowers

The main purpose of annuals is to furnish bloom when other plants do not, particularly the great wealth of June blooming perennials such as the irises, peonies, delphiniums and the earlier perennials and poppies which must be planted upon to the garden until toward July. July is the month when the big show of annuals is due and needed when there is a lull in the procession of perennials.

MUCH UNEASINESS ON STOCK MARKET DURING PAST WEEK

Credit Situation Reflected in Drop of Prices on New York Exchange

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York—(AP)—Speculative uneasiness over the credit situation was reflected in stock prices this week.

While there is still much divergence of opinion as to whether the "bull" market, which has been under way with few interruptions since 1922, has ended, there is little doubt but that speculative activities have been sharply checked by the adverse credit developments of the past few weeks. This is apparent from the shrinkage in the daily volume of sales.

A temporary outburst of buying

NINE-YEAR OLD HOPS FREIGHT TRAIN AND THEN CAN'T GET OFF

One Appleton youngster, nine years old, went hop freight trains yesterday morning. He recalls his experience Friday and the fact that little boys must eat.

The youngster in company with two other boys hopped a freight train at Appleton Junction and when the train started the two companions jumped off. The subject of this story apparently was too frightened to jump and he stayed with the train until it reached Slinger.

About this time he became hungry and when he went to a house in that village and asked for something to eat, he told his story between mouthfuls of food. Slinger authorities were told of the boy and they called Appleton police. The youngster's father went to Slinger and returned home with the prodigal.

WEATHERMAN STICKS TO CONTRARY IDEAS

Predicts Showers and Cold Weather for This Week-end

Summer weather which has been prevailing here for the past 48 hours is to be followed by showers and a cold spell Sunday, according to the weatherman.

The mercury continued to explore the regions around 70 degrees during the past 24 hours, and at noon Saturday it had reached the high mark of 76 degrees above zero.

Early Saturday morning the thermometer stood at 63 degrees above zero.

Winds are shifting in the south and west which under ordinary conditions is a fair indication that ideal weather is to prevail. Fair weather is predicted in the northern sections of the state with occasional showers while thunderstorms are due in the eastern and southern sections, the weatherman says.

WHY ARE FLAGS UP? WHO EVER STARTED IT? NOBODY KNOWS

"What are the flags up for?" If you happened to be downtown Saturday morning, you probably asked this question yourself, and heard it asked by others innumerable times. Apparently nobody knew the answer, however, whether layman or official.

The mayor didn't know, and neither did the chamber of commerce. Officials of the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion were just as much in the dark.

Somewhere, it appears, happened to remember that Saturday is the twelfth anniversary of the date of America's entrance into the World War. He displayed a flag in front of his business place, other businessmen saw it and followed suit, and soon College-ave was lined with flags until the street presented a holiday appearance.

This, at least, is the explanation offered by various officials, and it sounds plausible.

NEW YORK STUDIO OFFERS COURSES IN CAMERA POSING

Persons of Many Distinctions Can Learn Valuable Tricks in "College"

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON

Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

New York—Any ambitious youth who wants to take up the career of professional indorser may begin his life training in New York.

A leading photographic studio has installed a genteel college annex where distinguished persons, such as channel swimmers, diplomats, prize fighters, society women, sea heroes, play actors, impresarios, golf champions, lucky guessers, best sellers, correspondents, captains of industry, movie stars, jazz kings, orators, winners of bunion derbies—as well as apprentices who are just taking up these trades—may learn to face the camera with aplomb, or even ecstacy or sangfroid.

This last is dragged in to denote the degree of gentility in this new institutionalized business of camera posing. Its class A goods and every instructor has a Harvard accent and a morning coat.

Rotogravure addicts, seasoned indorsers of persons who, on a natural, are apt to indorse something almost any moment, receive a note, written with the reserve becoming the address of royalty, informing them that for their convenience a "studio intime" has been established where they may, quietly and "without annoying publicity," prepare themselves for "the trying ordeal of posing, so constantly inflicted on persons of your attainments."

There is a special course in "plastic posture" for debbs and sub-debbs. This, one of the easier under-graduate courses gives the mastery of a somewhat languid pose, with just a touch of hauteur. For grand dames and matrons, there are studies in real attitudes, and in the aloof detachment of the socially sophisticated. Dominant figures of the business and financial world may school themselves in Napoleonic poses, bringing powers, thrones and dominions together at the point of a sharp pencil.

For sporting celebrities there are elective courses A and B. The A pose denotes a merry and casual, insouciance, especially serviceable in toothpaste indorsing, as it is achieved with a smile. The B pose is of grover mien and belongs properly to the "did for my old mother" school.

"Vraiesemblance" is the studio euphemism for make-up. A young man in a smock and a red beret steps four paces back, squints across a mahi stick, and murmurs that "a touch of boldness" is necessary to

CHURCH SOCIETY TO PRESENT PLAY

Three-act Farce Will Be Given Sunday and Monday Nights

Amusing characters and clever dialogue are abundant in the three act farce, "The Mummy and the Mummies," which will be presented at 8 o'clock Sunday and Monday evenings at St. Joseph hall. The play is sponsored by the Young Ladies Society of St. Joseph church and is under the direction of Henry J. Jung of Neenah.

Agatha Laidlaw, played by Miss Hazel Hamden, is the principal of an exclusive girls' school in Boston. She is expecting Sir Hector Flash, a noted young scientist, who is bringing with him the mummy of King Tut's queen, William Delton as Sir Hector arrives in a most unconventional fashion so as to escape quarantine for a well-developed case of mumps.

Anne Hampton, played by Miss Cecile Haaz, discovers and keeps secret Sir Hector's identity. Harold Hassmann, in the role of Francis Brisco, complicates matters when he impersonates the young Englishman and he is assisted in his scheme by Billy Laidlaw, played by George Thibault and Maude Mullen, Miss Helen Kutzinger. More misunderstandings arise through the dumb-dora of the school, Dulcie Dumble, played by Miss Marie Schmidt. John Rechner as Racker, the man-of-all-work, adds to the hilarity of the situations and George Haug as Perkins the sheriff presents a serious slow-thinking type of officer. Phoebe Beebe, the keen, inquisitive reporter, is played by Miss Marie Dohr.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. George Schneider, former residents of Appleton, now of Port Arthur, Canada, are visiting relatives and friends in the city.

S. A. Konz and L. J. Konz have gone to Springfield, Mo., on a business trip.

Harold Brautman has gone to Niagara Falls, N. Y. for a week's visit.

ERRATIC MOVEMENT ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Prices Head Downward During Early Trading but Rally Later

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York—(AP)—Stock prices were churned about in rather erratic fashion Saturday in reflection of the extensive readjustment of speculative accounts. Prices generally headed downward at the opening but rallied later when fresh buying of oil and railroad shares. Acute weakness cropped out in a few high priced specialties which dropped 5 to 20 points in the thin market. Speculative sentiment was unsettled.

American Express was run up more than 15 points to a new high at 375, and Superior Steel, after dropping two points, in the early trading ran up five points above Friday night's close to a new high at 72 1/2.

The closing was steady. Total sales approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Early declines of a point or so were recorded by American Can, Chrysler, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Common, Postum and Warner Bros. Bethlehem Steel opened a point higher. U. S. Steel Common and General Motors yielded fractionally.

Such leaders as Wheat, Aeronautical, Packard Motors, Radio, Anaconda, Montgomery-Ward and Advance Rumley, quickly sold down 2 to 4 points.

U. S. Steel Common, quickly dropped 2 points. Republic, Vanadium and Superior Steels also fell back a point or so.

Kinney was marked up 2 points to a new high at 10 and a few other issues, such as New York Central, General Electric, American Safety Razor and American Express, pointed upward in the early trading.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85 1/2.

LARGE BOUQUET OF FLOWERS CHEERS UP MAYOR FOR WEEKEND

While Mayor A. C. Rule was sitting at his desk in the city hall about 10:30 Saturday morning, probably worrying about a sewer, a water main, or any one of a hundred matters which are brought to his attention daily, his mind was diverted for a few minutes by the entrance of a messenger boy, who left a large bouquet of snapdragons with his Honor. The bouquet, carried in a dark blue basket, was more than four feet tall.

Unable to think of any cause for such a gift, his Honor was flabbergasted until he found the card and message. The gift was from the mayor of Buffalo, N. Y., and was sent by wire as an "expression of good will from the people of Buffalo" upon the opening of the tenth annual flower show in Buffalo.

Needless to say, the mayor's duties seemed lighter for the remainder of the morning, with a beautiful bouquet adorning his desk.

Long-Pull Outlook For Oil Industry Is Bright

Babson Park, Fla. — "We are nesting today the beginning of a vast economic change in the oil industry. The co-operative efforts of oil leaders in restricting wasteful over-production are very important, but this co-operative movement is really only a sign that the oil leaders are beginning to realize the ultimate destiny of the oil industry. Present co-operative movements are but the first step toward combination into larger units. There are destined to be widespread consolidations which should result not only in far greater profits to the companies, but in cheaper and better gasoline for consumers. The present unnecessary duplication in tank wagons, filling stations, advertising, etc. is very wasteful, and will sooner or later result in great combinations which should make many oil stocks sell for three or four times their present prices.

MAY BECOME UTILITIES

"There is no more reason for ten or a dozen oil companies to be supplying gasoline and oil service to the same town than there would be for ten or a dozen electric light or gas companies supplying light and gas service to the same town. In fact the oil business has many essential features of a public utility, and I believe that ultimately our great oil distributing concerns will become a kind of modified public utility, in form as well as in substance.

I believe that the better oil companies are today where the public utilities were ten years ago, and that the next ten years will show as great an improvement in the 'Oils' as the past ten years have in the 'Utilities'.

"In this connection it should be emphasized that companies with large chains of retail wholesale distributing stations are in a preferred position. Such companies will form the nucleus of the oil consolidations of the future. They will be in great demand by the big crude oil producing concerns which have a surplus of oil but a dearth of distributing outlets.

CURTAINMENT HELPFUL

"So much for the broad aspects of the oil business for the future. At the present time the greatest problem is the threatened over-production of crude oil. Under the leadership of the American Petroleum Institute, producers have recently gotten together on an ambitious program of curtailment. This is distinctly encouraging. The plan is to reduce crude oil output in the four leading areas of the United States, Mexico and South America, to the level of production on April 1, 1923. This means an 8 per cent cut in daily output. It would bring production in line with current consumption requirements. The fact that the California companies have agreed to this plan is especially helpful because the California field has been mainly responsible for the over-production during the first two months of 1923. Also Venezuelan operators have cut down their production. Oklahoma and other operators in the Mid-Continent field have voluntarily been cooperating for some time, and the proposed reduction in this area is not much below the maximum already set voluntarily. The fact that both West Texas and California have come in, however, is especially significant.

REGULATE NEW DRILLING

"Undoubtedly this new proration agreement will do much to help sentiment in the oil industry during the next few months. On the other hand, it should be remembered that such a program takes a certain amount of time to become effective. Those interested in the oil industry, whether as investors or as operators, should not become discouraged if the situation does not immediately right itself. Sooner or later cooperation will have its effect in improving conditions.

"I do feel, however, that the co-operative program at the present time outlined, will not solve the whole problem. Real conservation calls for curtailment of new drilling operations fully as much as curtailing actual production. If the oil men curtail production from existing wells and continue to drill new wells and tap new flush pools, they are merely storing up trouble in the future. Statistics show that new wells are continuing to be drilled just about as fast as they ever were. The solution of this problem, it seems to me, can be only partly achieved by cooperative agreements. It may even be necessary to establish great holding companies in each field, so that regulation of new drilling can be effectively enforced. This would be in line with the general tendency toward larger units in the industry, which, in the last analysis, is the only means whereby a comprehensive conservation program can be permanently successful.

CONSIDER PUBLIC INTEREST

"The trend toward consolidation in the oil industry is fundamentally sound, not only from the standpoint of the industry and its investors, but also from the standpoint of the public at lower rates.

"It has been accomplished largely through consolidation and interconnection of properties, thus bringing savings in costs which have been shared with the consumers. The oil industry should be able to accomplish the same results. To do this, however, the management of the oil companies must be actuated by ideals of public service and not merely by a selfish desire for profit. If the present co-operative movements are used simply to boost the price of gasoline and oil to the consumer they will defeat their own purpose. Without a sympathetic attitude on the part of the people, engendered by confidence in the integrity and fair dealing of the oil companies, it will be impossible to put over any great consolidation movement, regardless of how desirable it may be for all interests concerned. Business by the Babson Institute is now 6 per cent above normal compared with 4 per cent above a year ago.

WARSAW JOURNAL REPORTS ON U. S.

Many American Business and Political Leaders Contribute to Edition

Warsaw, (AP)—President Hoover, Secretary Mellon, Calvin Coolidge, Charles G. Dawes and many other American political and business leaders contributed articles to a special illustrated United States edition issued by Kurjer Poranny, a prominent Warsaw daily newspaper.

Secretary Mellon recalled in his contribution that Poland has been facing many of the financial problems which confronted the United States in the early years of its independence. He added:

"It has been a source of great satisfaction that Poland has been able to make such steady progress in her financial and economic recovery during the last two or three years, and that America has had the opportunity to cooperate with you in bringing about this result."

President Hoover wrote: "The people of America have watched with interest and pleasure the great strides which the republic of Poland has made in a single decade, working its way from the wreckage of war to its recent favorable economic situation."

Edward A. G. Chwatczynski of the Kurjer Poranny staff was in the United States for many months preparing the edition. His work gives a comprehensive survey of the commercial and financial relations of Poland and the United States.

SMALL ARMIES RULE IN FUTURE CONFLICTS

Paris — (AP)—A French general, who hides his identity beneath three stars, writes in a well-known French revue that wars of the future will be fought by small armies seeking a rapid decision. This, he declares, is the German conception, and France in counting upon complete mobilization of all forces with a view to a general engagement will be at a disadvantage.

France and Germany, according to this critic, have been influenced by each other. The Germans, impressed by the rapidly organized resistance of the French in the last war, no longer pin their faith on a decision by huge masses of troops. The French, on the other hand, im-

LOCAL RADIO SHOP HAS EQUIPMENT FOR REPAIRING ANY SET

Repairmen Prepare to Meet the Rapid Advancement and Changes

With the advancement in radio from year to year, it is necessary that service men keep pace with changes by installing necessary testing and engineering equipment in their service departments.

All of the latest equipment for repairing, testing and re-vamping radio equipment has been installed at the M.L.O-Tone radio shop at 712 S. Kerman-ave. Expert radio repairmen are employed at the shop who guarantee satisfaction on repair work.

In few industries have there been such tremendous changes during the past year, according to repairmen at the local shop. Here are a few examples of what has taken place. The frequency encountered in the human speech are within 100 to 6,000 complete vibrations per second. This means that the human ear must be taken into consideration.

The energy contained in speech is carried almost completely by frequencies below 500 but quality and intelligibility of speech is determined very largely by the frequencies higher than 500 cycles, they say.

This means delicate balancing and checking equipment to give the radio public the results they demand. Radio is no longer a play thing but is requiring the attention of a specialist now and then to keep it functioning properly with a minimum amount of expense involved.

pressed by the thorough organization of the whole German army before striking a blow, believe in what amounts, according to the general, to almost national mobilization.

A highly trained, comparatively small fighting force, says the critic, will in the next war attack with lightning rapidity, leaving its rear to be covered by a gradually gathering reserve, and any nation that expects to have time to mobilize will find itself vanquished before it can get its effectives into the field.

More than 800,000 square miles, or 28 per cent of the area of Canada, exclusive of the Arctic islands, is still unexplored.
